AMERICAN BOATS WIN 2D SONDER RACE

Lotta Crabtree's Sonoma Girl, one of the scratch horses in the $50,000 Derby at Readville to-day.

Germans Again Trail All Three of the Yankee Contestants in International Cup Contest—Ellen Led at Finish.

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 31.—The American sonder yacht Ellen, sailed by Captain Charles P. Curtis, Jr., the eighteen-year-old son of the former Boston Police Commissioner, won the second day's contest to-day between the three Yankee and German boats. This is the second triumph in the contest for America. Another win will give the Taft and Draper cups to the home trio of little boats.

The Wolf and Joyette followed the Ellen and then came the Hevella and Margarethe. The Seehund II. was out of the race because she fouled the outer stake boat.

Great excitement was caused during the race by the firing of two revenue cutters upon two fishing schooners that ran into the course. The cartridges were, of course, blank. One of the fishermen refused to stop and a cutter raced after it for three miles, firing several times, but the fast schooner got away.

The first round was won by the three American boats, with the Ellen leading and the Wolf, Joyette, Margarette and Hevella trailing in the order given. The Ellen completed the first round, which is half the distance in to-days contest, at 12:24:10, the start being at one minute past 11.

The bad luck of yesterday seems to have pursued the Seehund II. to-day, and she was compelled to drop out of the race before the first round was completed. When she limped up to the starting mark in the lee of the others, instead of turning and continuing in the contest, she made for the harbor.

"It looked like a tierman day at the start," remarked a yachtsman on shore, "but the Americans are sailing a winning race apparently, and I guess the cups are safe."

Wolf and Joyette Battle.

In the boat to the windward there was a pretty battle between the Joyette and the Wolf, both taking the swells easily and tacking about the same time. The Ellen, some distance from her two sister boats, was gradually creeping up on them and before the first leg was covered she had passed into the lead.

While the Hevella got a fine start and had every opportunity to gain an advantageous position the trio of American skippers, by clever jockeying, succeeded in getting up into a clear course, and once under way they manifested their superior seamanship or knowledge of local conditions and scooped up enough wind to land them in the lead.

During the rest of the first leg and all of the second back to the starting mark the three American boats showed their foaming heels to the German opponents. It appeared as though the American boats took the swells with greater ease and managed to capture more wind than could the older skippers from across the sea. The white sails of the Joyette, Ellen and Wolf spread thunderous, while there was a noticeable drooping of the wings of the German sonders.

With every inch of sail set, all of the competing yachts came down to the starting mark under the wind, ending the first round amid a great demonstration in the harbor and on shore. The Ellen, with a slight advantage, was closely pressed by the Wolf. The Ellen's lead was hardly discernible from shore.

In turning the home stake the Ellen managed to gain a lead of about two seconds on the Wolf, and put off for the second lap on a windward tack. Following the Wolf were the Joyette and the Hevella and Margarethe of the Germans.

Yesterday's victory came to the Americans over a triangular course of a distance of fifteen miles. To-day's race is over a windward and leeward course of twelve miles.

The beginning of the second matching of skill was an inspiring sight. The weather was ideal, the sky blue and cloudless sky the sun shone brightly. From the harbor there came a cool eight-knot breeze. It ruffled the azure of the sea into choppy waves that were fringed with white feathers of foam.

Fine Scene at Start.

In and around the harbor were craft of all kinds from the big, luxurious yacht to the dinky dory-craft that would total a value of a million and a half to two million dollars. On the great boulders of the coast gleamed the picturesque colors of holiday raiment.

Followed by shouts of good luck and the

THOUSANDS SEE GREAT $50,000 READVILLE DERBY

READVILLE RACE TRACK, Aug. 31.—Crowds poured through the gates this afternoon to see the great trotting Derby.

"It is grand opera in horse racing, and when the real article is offered the public quickly realize the fact," said Andy Welch, owner of the Readville track, as with a satisfied smile he watched the turnstiles merrily clicking.

No more perfect day could have been wished for. The track was in perfect condition, the forty horses in the rich event fairly gliding over it when doing their warming up stunts preparatory to facing Starting Judge Walker for the crucial test.

All eyes were centred on the Syracuse Stallion Baron Alcyon, the favorite, when Driver Harvey Earnest appeared with him on the course. He is the property of Lieutenant Governor Wade of New York, who, with a party of friends, were seated on the club house piazza with watches in hand timing the grand-looking son of Baron H., and Brownie.

From Cleveland were a delegation of fifty, headed by C. K. G. Billings, who has recently returned from touring Europe with his stable of high-class trotters, including the mares, Lou Dillon, 1:59½; Colonel Cochrane, one of the best known horsemen in the West, and Harry Dereven, promoter of the famous new North Randall race track outside of Cleveland. The Forest City representatives were strong in rooting for Jack McKerron, sired by Mr. Beverly's stallion, John A. McKerron, dam Lady Jones, 2:09.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Aug. 31.—The ever-popular Pirates from Pittsburg swooped down on the pasture this afternoon and swooped it away with the first game of the series from the Doves. The Buccaneers are out for the National League pennant this year, and they don't care who knows it.

The great Honus Wagner, who alone is always worth the price of admission, disported himself in his accustomed territory, and his bow-legged stunts amused that part of the crowd that got to the grounds in time for the preliminary practice.

Fred Clarke declared his men were prized to go right through the season at the top of the ladder, fearing no team in the league. It certainly looked to the fans as though they were gazing at coming champions.

The Doves, who have been playing good ball, were in shape to make the Pirates buckle for all they got. Manager Smith said it was time to show the visitors that they were out for business.

WAIT UNTIL TAFT RELEASES NEWS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The second session of the interstate commerce amendment committee, consisting of Attorney-General Wickersham, Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Solicitor-General Lloyd W. Bowers, representative Townsend of Michigan and Commissioners Martin A. Knapp and Charles A. Prouty was held in the rooms of the bar association to-day behind closed doors. Not a word of the plans will be made public until President Taft has passed upon them, it was announced to-day.

R. R. STATION AT BROOKLINE ROBBED

Burglars broke into the Brookline station of the Boston & Albany railroad early to-day and opening the safe door by simply using the usual combination, stole $25, all the money in the safe. The burglars closed and locked the safe after taking the money.

CATCHER BLOCK SUSPENDED

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 31.—Catcher Jimmy Block of the Minneapolis club was to-day suspended for three days by President O'Brien for umpire baiting on August 27.

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, Aug. 31.—The "Blood Series" began to-day when the Red Sox lined up against the Detroit Tigers in the first of three games. It was do or die with both teams.

Detroit fans by the thousands, who fell in the air that there were to be some great doings on the diamond, flocked to the grounds and began to "kid" the Speed Boys as soon as they appeared on the green pasture.

The Boston fellows looked for a hard series, but they were ready for any kind of game the Tigers wanted. "If these fellows try any dirty ball playing on us," declared one member of the Boston crowd, "they will find us right able to take care of ourselves. We are not looking for trouble, but will be there if Jennings's men start anything."

No love was lost between the two teams. Neither was afraid of the other, but both were out to win. The series meant much to both parties. If the Red Sox could get away with all the games they would be in the finest possible position when they opened up on home grounds on Saturday, and it would be the fiercest kind of a fight between the three leading clubs for pennant honors.

MUST NEVER RUN AUTO IN STATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—By a special decree of the Court of Special Sessions to-day, Felix L. Droll, thirty-four years old, a professional chauffeur, dare-devil driver and participant in the Vanderbilt cup race, was allowed to go on suspended sentence when arraigned for speeding an automobile in Fifth avenue, upon condition that he would never again drive an automobile in the State of New York. This promise saved Droll from paying a heavy fine and spending a long term in jail.

BIG STEEL STRIKE NEAR SETTLEMENT

PITTSBURG, Aug. 31.—Stating positively that an early settlement of the Pressed Steel Car Company strike is in sight, a representative of the company this forenoon visited the hundred or more families remaining in the company's houses in Schoenville, and informed them that they need not comply with the eviction notices, the time of which expires to-day.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, Aug. 31.—Connie Mack's would-be pennant winners played the second game of the series against the White Sox this afternoon. They won yesterday somewhat more easily than they expected so they had some reserve ginger left for this afternoon's battle.

"I am retiring on the Boston boys to pull the Tigers down a bit and if they play as well as they know how, my team is liable to be back in first place before many days have passed. It's a hot, old race and I am satisfied with my chances. Wait till that Detroit team comes East next week. Then you'll see some fun."

Mack had plenty of pitchers to put against the Sox to-day and it was only a case of shutting his eyes and picking any one of the three who warmed up.

VANDERBILTS IN BOSTON.

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt have been entertained at the residence of S. S. Moseley, the Boston banker, at his Summer home, Maudslieb, on the banks of the Merrimac River, three miles from this city. They came in their yacht, To-day they left for Boston, where they will make a short visit to friends.

ANY CONVICT MISSING?

The Newton police believe that in the arrest of James A. Carroll they have captured a convict. They have telephoned to all Massachusetts prisons and reformatories in an effort to find if anyone answering Carroll's description has escaped. The man was arrested while walking along the road to Wellesley. He says he has been working on Spectacle Island, Boston Harbor.

CRANE SEES DRAPER.

Senator W. Murray Crane called upon Governor Draper this morning and was closeted with him for about fifteen minutes. Neither the Governor nor the Senator would say anything with regard to the visit other than to say that it was an informal call.

QUINCY TAX RATE $20.40.

The tax rate in the city of Quincy for the ensuing year is $20.40. This was announced by the Board of Assessors at noon to-day. It is a reduction of ten cents from last year, there being a slight increase in personal and real estate.

WOOER SHOOTS CHILD OF 12

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Driven mad by love for his twelve-year-old step sister, Stella Freedman, Arthur Winterstein, a twenty-five years old, to-day shot her near the heart and would have killed her mother, her aunt and himself had not a number of men disarmed him.

The girl is dying in the Harlem hospital and Winterstein is under arrest. When his father learned the girl's mother the young man fell madly in love with her at first sight. The parents did their best to discourage the crazy infatuation of the young man, but without effect.

To-day he bought a revolver and sought the girl in her aunt's store.

"Stella," cried Winterstein as he entered, "you know I love you and want you to marry me. Will you?"

"Why, I've got to get ready to go to school," laughed the girl. "I can't get married."

Winterstein drew his revolver, aimed for her heart and fired.

GARDINER REFUSES $2,000 THAW CHECK

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Col. Asa Bird Gardiner to-day returned to State Treasurer Dunn a check for $2,000, the amount allowed him for services rendered in the defense of Harry Thaw, at the direction of former Attorney-General Jackson in representing the State in opposition to Harry Thaw's attempt to secure his release from Matteawan.

Colonel Gardiner presented a bill for $15,000. In a letter accompanying the check Gardiner says he had rendered no bill for such an amount as allowed and did not propose to accept it. He is summering in the Catskills and says he will come to Albany later to see about his compensation.

LOMASNEY FOR SENATOR NOW

For Senator—Martin M. Lomasney, Third Suffolk District, Wards 6, 7 and 8.

Senatorial ambition on the part of ex-Representative Daniel J. Kiley and "Brother Joe" Lomasney and a dislike by each to the candidacy of the other have caused dissension to crop up in the usually unified Democracy in Ward 8.

Kiley has a host of friends. So has "Brother Joe." The other wards in the district, 6 and 7, seem willing to keep out of the affair and let Ward 8 settle it.

There were evidences, politicians said to-day, that Martin was preparing to settle the matter by filling the Senatorial nomination papers in his own beanif.

HARDING'S DEATH TRIAL TO-MORROW

PITCHBURG, Aug. 31.—District Attorney Taft said to-day that the case of Ralph R. Harding of East Mendon for murder in the second degree will be heard before Judge Lawton to-morrow. The defendant is charged with killing Constable Albert E. Miller on June 26 in Oxford.

Judge Duff in police court to-day continued the case till September 7 and held d'Arena for trial under bonds of $500.

VOLIVA JAILED IN LIBEL SUIT

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, the spiritual successor of John Alexander Dowie and the deposed temporal potentate of Zion City, to-day went to the county jail at Woodstock, Ill., in default of the payment of $10,000 judgment rendered against him. He was taken to jail in an automobile. When he left to-day Voliva said:

"I am going to jail to sustain an eternal principle. My enemies are behind this. I will continue to run the Zion papers and write editorials from the jail."

The trouble is the result of a suit brought by Philip Mothershill of the new triumphant faction in Zion City, who accused the deposed leader of libeling him in his paper.

ADAMS FREED FROM TOMBS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—A. D. F. Adams, the Boston stock broker, who has been in the Tombs for eleven days under a charge of grand larceny in the first degree in connection with the sale of $110,000 worth of Eclipse Oil stock, which had been hypothecated, to-day secured a bondsman and was given his freedom pending trial with Donald Perach, who was indicted on a similar charge for a share in the same deal.

Robert J. Jeffersen, a stock broker, of No. 53 State street, Boston, furnished the bond, $25,000 in cash. The receipt for this money by the city chamberlain was given to Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions and Adams was admitted to bail. Counsel for Adams told the District-Attorney that his client desired to return to Boston and that he would hold himself in readiness to appear in court here at a moment's notice.

MASKED DESPERADOS HOLD UP TRAIN; FORCE MEN TO GIVE UP GOLD

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31.—The Pittsburg express of the Pennsylvania Railroad was held up and robbed early to-day at Lewistown Narrows, fifty-two miles west of here. The express car was looted, the safe taken away and the conductor of the car shot.

The number of masked desperadoes engaged in the daring hold-up is not known. One man did all the work, even to carting away the gold bullion from the express car, but passengers say others were lurking in the bushes nearby.

There is some uncertainty as to the amount of booty obtained. Estimates vary from $1,000 to $10,000. It is known, however, that there was a large amount of gold in bars in the express car and $5,000 worth of this has been found on the trail of the bandits.

Dynamite placed on the track was used to stop the train. The explosion which lifted the engine from the rails damaged the engine considerably, and created a panic among the passengers.

Bloodhounds on Trail.

The neighborhood was at once alarmed and while Pennsylvania detectives were rushed to the scene a posse of farmers and bloodhounds started in pursuit.

A bag containing $100 in pennies was found in the bushes near the train and another package containing $5,940 was discovered under the express car. The train left Pittsburg at 9 o'clock last night, carrying a full quota of passengers, many of them homeward for Pittsburg and Chicago.

The bandits chose an ideal place for the holdup. The tracks through the narrows consist of a narrow strip between a mountain wall and the Juanita River. Heavy timber covers the mountains in the vicinity and there are many fastnesses where pursuit is difficult and capture almost impossible.

Explosion Stops Train.

The express is one of the heaviest passenger trains on the road, and was pulled by two engines. The shadow of the mountain wall at the narrows was suddenly lighted up with a glare, and an explosion of dynamite tore the front part of the engine.

As the train came to a halt under the pressure of the emergency brake, one of the bandits, wearing a black slouch hat, a black mask and carrying two pistols of enormous calibre, stepped from the bushes along the bank.

The two enginemen swung to the ground.

"You get back there along the train; don't make any noise or I'll shoot you."

The two engineers with the bandit at their heels started to walk back along the train when they met Conductor Poffenberger.

Poffenberger, despite the menace of the bandit's two revolvers, urged the engineers to stay the train forward. The conductor started on, though he contemplated running the train himself when the robber fired a shot which plowed through the pinky trainman's hand.

Passengers Ordered Back.

The sudden stopping of the train and the rear of the explosion had aroused some of their passengers and several men clad only in their night dresses clambered down from the cars, thinking there had been a wreck.

"Get back into the train again and don't make a noise about it," commanded the robber, and to emphasize his remarks he fired a few shots into the air and the sleepers, which caused the frightened passengers to skip lively.

One of the robbers, holding his guns before him, ordered the trainmen to point out the express car. The door was locked, but the robber shouted through it that he would dynamite the train if the express messengers did not admit him. The expressmen complied.

Safe Thrown Out.

As the messenger threw open the door a bandit covered him with one of his revolvers and demanded that he throw out all the money and valuables. Some half dozen bags of coin which the railroad men here say contained only pennies, but which are said by others to have contained between $50,000 and $100,000 were taken from the strong box and thrown out beside the car.

"Now, throw out the safe," demanded the robber, and the expressman complied. The bandit compelled the engineer and fireman to carry the booty into a thicket, where confederates were hiding. The masked man then ordered the trainmen back to their posts.

The bandits were scared away before they had time to finish dynamiting the safe, although six sticks of dynamite were found beside it.

RAILROAD CHIEF CONFIRM SROBBERY; LOSS IS UNKNOWN

PITTSBURG, Aug. 31.—General Superintendent S. C. Long of the West Pennsylvania division lines east of Pennsylvania, has issued the following statement regarding the hold up of train 39, the Pittsburg express, near Lewistown narrows:

"About 1:25, August 31, train No. 39, engine 3136, Conductor I. M. Poffenberger, Engineer S. Donnelly, made up of one baggage car, five express cars and four sleeping cars, was stopped two miles west of M I block station by explosives placed on the track by a train robber. Conductor Poffenberger and engineer ordered to go back to the express car and assist in sending it and filling several bags with money and valuables.

"Conductor Poffenberger was going forward to ascertain the cause of the stop when he was held up and shot in the left hand, the bullet going through the hand. He continued with his train and was given medical attendance by Assistant Surgeon S. L. Schum at Huntingdon. Conductor Poffenberger is sixty years old.

"The engine was slightly damaged by the explosion, glass in the head light and cabin of engine being broken and the front damaged and train line broken at footboard. One rail in No. 1 track was broken by the explosion.

"It is impossible to say just how much money the robbers took, but they found one bag of pennies and several bars of gold bullion valued at about $5,000 on which no claim has been returned.

"The entire railroad police department was called for immediately and are now at work on the case."

POLICEMAN PLEADS FOR HIS PRISONER

Patrolman Flaherty arrested Rose Wasensing, seventeen years old, for breaking the law by peddling without a license, and to-day in the Police Court asked Judge Forsythe to be especially lenient with his prisoner as the girl is the only support of her family, consisting of her father, an invalid, and several little children, all too young to work. The girl was fined one cent. She did not have the cent, so Patrolman Flaherty paid her the penny which she paid over to the clerk. The Wasensing family lives at No. 318 Harrison avenue.

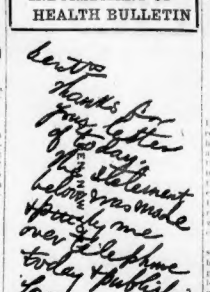
HARRIMAN'S OWN INDORSEMENT OF HEALTH BULLETIN



Dear Doctor Thanks for yours of to-day. The statement below made over the telephone today and published. You see, it covers the whole subject. Believe me Yours truly E. H. Harriman Aug 31 1909

The above is the photographic reproduction of the command written by Mr. Harriman himself on the margin of the first official statement issued by the railroad chief as to his condition. He said:

Thanks for your letter of to-day. The statement below was made to me over the telephone to-day and published. You see, it covers the whole subject.

40 STARS IN $35,000 RACE AT READVILLE

Kerron, 2.04¾. He took the Sword in the Derby on the 2:09 mark, 45 feet in front of the speedy trotters Semona Girl and San Francisco.

Not less than the society people in the the track the first thing this morning was race in the limelight for the world's pugilistic honors. And a big crowd of New Yorkers came in yesterday and were at how Tom's mare, Klondike, was looking. She started on the 2:13 mark.

Ex-Congressman Warren F. Daniel of Franklin Falls, N. H., was as chipper as though he had not passed his seventy-year-old mark quite a number of moons ago, and when asked what he thought of the race, one of his golding Birchleaf replied: "No one can ever tell how a horse race is coming out on Time tells me that my horse is fitted to the minute."

When the bell rang for the opening heat of the day, it was a pretty sight in looking across the quarter-stretch, taking in the grandstand, clubhouse and the lawn in front packed with humanity. The bright colors of the women's dresses and hats made the stands look like an immense flower garden. In the infield were thousands of automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles.

It was estimated that upwards of 30,000 persons were in attendance. "Over 25,000," declared Mr. Welch, "and let me say that each one of them cost me exactly $1.50 each in getting even on the meeting. With good weather the remainder of the week I can now count on putting a little balance on the right side of the ledger. Some have questioned my raising the fee of admission a half-dollar. It is not that the price was too much, but rather if the purses offered horsemen in racing were not too much. Outside of entrance fees on the horses starting the meeting cost me over $30,000 in purse money when the gates were thrown open to-day."

PROVIDENCE RUINS AGAIN BLAZE FORTH

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 31.—After the fire department had worked twenty hours on the fire in the Providence Warehouse Company's building on West Exchange street, at which several firemen were overcome and damage of about $50,000 was done early Monday morning, the blaze that was believed to have been extinguished started again early to-day in the annex to the main building, and the fire-fighters had another hard battle.

HARRIMAN PLANS ROUT OF ENEMIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Now that E. H. Harriman has issued a statement setting at rest the perplexing rumors concerning his health, the situation has generally cleared, and the public generally is accepting as true Mr. Harriman's words that he is rapidly becoming physically well. All attention is now turned towards Harriman's enemies, who tried to cut a $25,000,000 Union Pacific melon. It will be a battle royal for Harriman is a sturdy fighter and with wonderful powers at his command he can fight without asking quarter.

It is reported that Mr. Harriman will spend the Winter in Texas, likely near his old camp ground, where he spent a portion of the Spring. But before he leaves New York he will have taken vengeance on the financiers who tried to worst him while they thought he lay critically ill upon the Kaiser Wilhelm II.

A significant sentence in Mr. Harriman's health statement is: "I appreciate the interest shown in my welfare by the press and my friends in all sections—and perhaps, by some others."

The "some others" are supposed to represent the group of financiers who were attempted to work a financial double cross upon the railroad king. The intrigue against Harriman has been one of the most wonderful play away from the Union Pacific and affecting other interests. John D. Archbold, to whom has just returned from Europe, has taken it upon himself to untangle conditions as far as possible. One of the alleged conspirators is said to be largely interested in Standard Oil stock. Archbold is said to have talked plainly to this man and censured him severely for his action. This verbal chastisement was made necessary because there is Standard Oil capital in many of Harriman enterprises.

ELOPING PAIR TELL ROMANCE OF DIAMOND

A pretty romance of the baseball diamond was unfolded in Charlestown to-day when Rose Ann Buckley and Jack Burke, formerly Miss Mary Catherine McAleevy of No. 16 Lyndboro street, Charlestown, announced that they had quietly stolen away and were married in Dunstable.

Three years ago the bride cheered the clever work of the second baseman on the Dunstable Fairies, and when Burke was holding the game was won. Later they met and the runaway marriage tells the rest of the story.

"We wanted to get married quickly and so eloped to Pawtucket," said the groom to-day. I secured a marriage license quickly in City Clerk Fuller of Pawtucket, and he told us that Rev. James H. Lyon of the Central Falls Congregational Church would marry us.

"When we were ready to leave the parlor of the minister's residence he picked up the marriage license, looked at it and said: 'No, I can't marry you in this parlor. This is a license to marry in Pawtucket and the parlor is in Central Falls.' If you still want to get married, come out into the garden, and I will marry you there.' So I did and I went out into the beautiful garden of the parsonage, and we were married under a cherry tree, while the birds were chirping," broke in the bride. "All of our friends have been pouring into the house to congratulate us."

ADVISES COUNTY JAILS FOR DRUNKS

A law that will compel all the counties in the State to take care of their own "drunks" as far as their maintenance is concerned, is, in the opinion of Deputy Penal Institutions Commissioner Carruth, the best way to relieve Boston from the burden it has to bear as the result of the thirst tendency of its visiting population.

Deputy Carruth would have all "drunks" who reside in other counties and who have been sentenced to a term of imprisonment in this city sent to the jails of their respective counties.

He states that this would prevent the overcrowded conditions that have been for months the order of things at Deer Island.

Furthermore, he declares, that out of every 100 prisoners sent to Deer Island for drunkenness thirty-five reside in other counties. It costs Boston $1.50 a year for every prisoner kept at Deer Island, he says.

COTTAGERS AT OAK BLUFFS IN CLASH

OAK BLUFFS, Aug. 31.—Dana Malone, Attorney General of Massachusetts, has begun proceedings against the Vineyard Grove Company, of which Representative Hamilton J. Greene is treasurer and agent, on the ground that the property surrounding Lake Anthony was sold to the company with the understanding that it was always to stand as an open park.

The proceedings have developed from the building of a number of cottages on the shores of the lake. Certain residents of the town claim that this property, under the deeds held by the Grove Company, can not be sold, and consequently no buildings can be put upon it there.

If the Attorney General wins the contention of the townspeople, who are back of the suit, the cottages will have to be removed and the shore left open, as it was before the Summer homes were built.

H. N. HARDY, HIGGINS' AID, ILL, RESIGNS

Horace N. Hardy, second assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, and a son of Judge John W. Hardy of the Superior Court, has resigned, according to announcement of District Attorney John J. Higgins to-day. A complete physical breakdown that requires an extended rest is given as the reason. Mr. Hardy, on assuming his duties in the office of the district attorney last November, was not in vigorous health. His work, especially during the Jordan trial, but was exacting and during the Spring he steadily declined. At present he is confined to his home in Arlington, but not seriously ill.

SEA CABLE OF '82 IN GOOD SHAPE YET

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The cable steamer Mexican, which returned to-day after a month's repair cruise, reported finding twelve miles of deep sea cable off the Bahama Islands that has been in service since 1882 in such perfect condition that it was raised.

"The sound was heaped over it several feet high," Captain Bond said, "but the twenty-seven years of battering that the ocean had given it did not left a perceptible sign. Ordinarily a couple of years of service rusts and wears a cable badly."

MRS. THOMPSON, WHOM HUSBAND HAD ARRESTED

Edward S. Thompson, who has a real estate office at No. 294 Washington street, says he is going to begin immediate proceedings for divorce against his wife Sarah, who was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge Baschert in Providence yesterday after she and Louis D. Brodhead had been found together in the Narragansett Hotel in that city. Brodhead, a traveling salesman living at No. 732 Jersey avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., got the same sentence.

Mrs. Thompson was a Brookline woman, the daughter of Captain Rufus G. F. Cadage, who for more than twenty-five years was one of the board of assessors in that aristocratic town. The Thompsons have been married about five years, and have two small children. The husband was formerly Parker House cashier. He appeared against his wife in court.

Husband Tracks Wife.

"My wife left home Saturday, telling me that she was going to Brockton," he said. "I suspected something was up, and I decided to follow her. This man Brodhead met her at our house in July last on the date of our fifth wedding anniversary. I had asked some of our friends there to help celebrate and Brodhead was one of them. He seemed quite acquainted with my wife then he made an engagement with her.

"All that Mr. Thompson says isn't true," said the accused wife to the court. "We have had many disputes and haven't lived happily together. The trouble began when we went to live with my mother-in-law. Our oldest child has been supported by my mother. She has, in fact, fully supported me ever since I got married. My husband treated me like a dog. When I went to New York two years ago I made up my mind to leave him for good. We settled our differences, but a short time ago he got to be unbearable again."

Sat in Brookline.

Brodhead told the court he was a salesman for a hardware firm in Southington, Ct., and he admitted being found with Mrs. Thompson.

There was a stir in Brookline family circles when months ago Mrs. Thompson took her two children and went to New York. Mr. Thompson followed her and finally found his family in a hotel there after a long hunt. When he came back to Boston he intimated that he might ... a divorce. But Mrs. Thompson and the children finally came back to him.

CUTTER FIRES UPON FISHING BOATS IN RACE

encouraging salutes of scores of steam whistles and screaming sirens, while the bandker-chiefs and small flags carried by hundreds of women fluttered gaily, the six smart little racers flitted out from shore to the starting mark. The warning signal was made at 11:01 o'clock, just a minute late. The skippers of the six boats were on the alert. For ten minutes they jockeyed for positions; each captain eager to gain every fair advantage possible. The start was made at just 11:10 o'clock.

The manoeuvres of the competing vessels afforded much greater pleasure at the start to-day than yesterday because they were within two miles of the shore and easily followed by the spectators. The race to-day is a beat of three miles to windward, a run back and then a recovering of the course.

Joyette is First Away.

The little Joyette, the American yacht which won yesterday's race, was the first to cross the line. She was followed closely by the German Hevelh. Then came the Wolf, another American. The Ellen of the home racers and the Margarethe and Seehund of the visitors were followers almost in a bunch. All of the boats with the exception of the Wolf started off on a port tack.

Captain Caleb Loring of the Wolf alone elected to take the starboard tack. It was very soon noticeable that his judgment had been good and every other skipper in the race followed his lead, changing the tack as soon as possible. This clever work on the part of the American skipper gave the Wolf a slight lead on the five other boats.

The friends of the Wolf gave a mighty cheer when they saw the little craft's advantages. It was observed that the Wolf pointed somewhat higher than the other racers. As she shot away in the contest she would disappear in the trough of the sea so that at times only part of her sails were visible to those ashore.

Good Day for Germans.

"This is a good day for the German boats," remarked one of the enthusiastic yachtsmen following the racers with a powerful pair of glasses. "The choppy sea is just what they have been praying for." "But keep your eye on the Wolf," was the quick response of another." She is something of a goer in this kind of weather, too."

Among the craft in the harbor was the President's yacht Sylph, with a party of young people aboard from the Summer White House. The President was not aboard, but some of the younger members of the family were there.

"WE SHALL SOON TALK WITH THE DEAD," SAYS RT. REV. DR. FALLOWS

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—"Telepathy is an established fact. In recent years great strides have been made in the explanation of psychic phenomena and in the years to come the science of communication with the dead will be made a part of the curriculum of great educational institutions. As its study becomes systematized and more widely spread greater advances will be made and some day we will talk with the spirits as we now talk with material persons."

This statement was made in an interview today by Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

Future advancement in the science of "immortalism," which is spiritualism with the "fakes" left out, will some day bring it to the point where it will be studied by the masses just as they now delve into Latin, arithmetic, geography or grammar, according to Bishop Fallows, who spoke at St Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church on "Why Am I an Immortalist and Not a Spiritualist?"

The bishop made some startling statements in discussing his sermon subject tonight. He frankly says that he formerly fought shy of spiritualism and that he is just beginning to learn.

In the enlightened days to come, says Dr. Fallows, we shall be able to converse with spirits of departed friends and relatives. Their state will be made known to us through these communications. They will be able to advise us on knotty problems, he adds.

Hasn't Yet Seen a Spirit.

In his sermon, Bishop Fallows quoted a speech of Dr. Adam Clarke, in which that celebrated commentator said:

"I believe that spirits may, according to the order of God, in the laws of their place of residence, have intercourse with this world and become visible to mortals."

"Did you ever see a spirit?" Bishop Fallows was asked.

"No, I never have," was the answer. "But I know persons whom I believe they had seen and talked with at spirits, intelligent members of my own congregation, whose words I have no reason to doubt.

"I at first discarded them in their belief. I now feel that their experiences were of great value, and that I sustained an incalculable loss by not going deeper into the matter with them."

"You really believe, then, that spirits may be visible to material persons, and that they may talk with and influence a material mind?" he was asked.

"I do firmly believe that. There are well authenticated cases on record where important actions of great value were influenced by some supernatural communication.

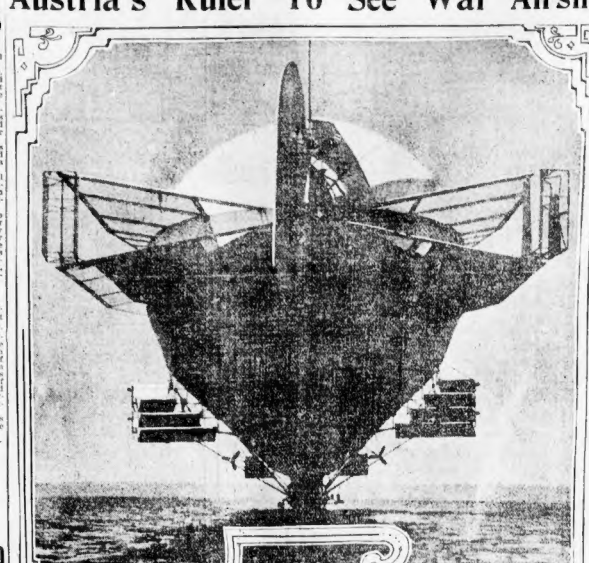
"In many cases they were unable to identify the mysterious agencies. They had merely an intangible feeling that they should change their course. In other cases they were able to remember the spirit who talked to them, to repeat its exact words and to describe its appearance. These instances cannot be doubted, as they come from men high in their professions.

Great Truths in Spiritualism.

"There are great truths in spiritualism. Many spiritualistic phenomena we cannot understand, but we have to admit them. I have called the new science 'Immortalism' because it depends for its evidence upon the immortality of the soul, to which we all believe, and the preservation of identity beyond the grave. Immortalism is simply spiritualism with all the frauds and trickery eliminated. On account of these frauds spiritualism has been shunned by many right thinking people, but immortalism will claim their most earnest attention."

In support of his belief Bishop Fallows quoted from many eminent men who have expressed similar views.

Zeppelin III. Is Disabled In Air Flight
★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★
Austria's Ruler To See War Airship



Front view of Count Zeppelin's Airship, showing it skimming over lake.

BUELZIG, Ger., Aug. 31.—Repairs are being rushed to-day on the Zeppelin III., which was disabled while returning from Berlin to Friedrichshafen. It is now thought that the big airship can be put into condition so as to make a flight on Wednesday or Thursday.

Emperor William, when he heard that the Zeppelin III. had met with a breakdown, ordered that the Zeppelin II., the airship that has already been turned over to the German army, be sent from the Rhine depot to the Lake of Constance for the inspection of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who had intended to inspect the Zeppelin III.

The Zeppelin II. will, therefore, accompany Francis Joseph's yacht on the return journey to Bregenz.

The forward propeller of the Zeppelin III. was broken, tearing large holes in the envelope of one of the forward compartments. Two days will be required for repairs.

The Zeppelin airship started at 1:24 p. m. from Tegelhof parade ground on its return voyage to Friedrichshafen.

The two forward propellers were broken, and one of them pierced the envelope. This caused the gas to escape. But the airship was kept up by throwing over half of the last mail sack as the landing was made.

The ship landed gently on a meadow within thirty yards of the railway tracks here. The weather is fine and there is no wind.

Telegrams were sent to Friedrichshafen for workmen, materials and gas.

It had been the intention to show Zeppelin III. to Emperor William and to Francis Joseph, the Emperor of Austria, with the same week. Emperor Francis Joseph has arranged to visit the newly constructed airship works on the lake of Constance, and Zeppelin II. was hurrying back to the south in order to reach the lake to-morrow.

17 CHILDREN BURNED IN AN ORPHAN ASYLUM; HEROIC NUNS SAVE 500

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The bodies of seven children were found early to-day in the ruins of St. Malachy's House, a Roman Catholic institution for the Summer care of orphan children which was destroyed by fire. They were huddled together in one room on the second floor, having been overlooked in the struggle to escape. The little bodies were burned beyond recognition.

The firemen and police are continuing the search, and it is expected that more bodies will be found.

Until the firemen began the search among the ruins it was believed that all of the 650 children had been saved. Many of the nuns, who formed the fire drill, and marched the boys and girls out of the building, are missing.

Other Homes Threatened.

Eight hundred other children were marched out of the Andrew Sanitarium and St. Georges Episcopal Home nearby, which was threatened by the flames. A great crowd of Summer residents gathered about the ruins early to-day and watched the firemen and police work among the smouldering debris. When the bodies of the children were tenderly carried out the crowd gave three cheers.

The fire started while 500 children were asleep in their dormitories and a hundred more were kneeling at prayer in the chapel.

St. Malachy's house was a four-story building fifty feet square, facing the ocean, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth streets, across Beach avenue. Its dormitories were on the top floor, being free from loud noise of the Jewish boys and girls. Near these is St. George's Episcopal Home, housing three hundred more.

On the first floor of the Catholic House was the chapel and here were assembled 500 of the children, while the fire was more than two hundred, ranging in age from three to ten. Then on the upper floors of a small laundry building, adjoining, were the infants, eighteen and twenty-four months old.

While Father Kirley was leading the children, smoke blew into the chapel. He looked toward the laundry building and saw a sheet of flame curling out of the lower windows. The boys and girls in chapel began to move nervously.

"Quiet, children," the priest said. Then he ordered "Form in line. Remember your fire drill. March out to the beach, then column left for a quarter of a mile."

The boys and girls with their regularly appointed leaders, formed into twos like a company of regular soldiers, the older ones leading those from the rear. They had been taught fire drill by many drills and knew all of it by heart. So the signal for the alarm rang.

At the sound of the bell the twenty or more nuns on the upper floors went from bed to their dormitories and got their little charges. Meanwhile quick, brave work was being done on the lower floors. There Sister Mary Joseph and Sister Dermott had been watching over their boys and girls. They smelled the smoke. The nuns rose, took a baby apiece under each arm, carried them out and deposited them on a cool grassy corner upon the lawn. Then they aped back and then out again with four more.

Other Children Saved.

The last few trips were made through great clouds of smoke. In a very few minutes the main building was ablaze to the roof. Three alarms of fire brought engines from all along the beach. The little Hebrew children, well trained, too, marched out upon the sand. So did the Episcopal kids. In a stretch of three-quarters of a mile of beach were one-third of a thousand boys and girls, all in nightgowns and in most excellent order.

Cottagers and hotel keepers eagerly took the children in, to take charge of twenty, in some cases, fifty boys or girls apiece. These in charge were led away each with a nurse as escort.

It soon became apparent that the Hebrew and Episcopal homes were safe. The managers of these have hastened to tell the Catholic priests and sisters that their doors were wide open. Every private dwelling within a mile was an open house for the orphans.

BLERIOT WILL COME OVER TO RECLAIM CUP

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Louis Blerlot, who flew across the English Channel, announced to-day that he was going to America next year and try to bring the international cup back to France.

"By that time," said he, "aviation will have made such strides that our recent exhibitions will seem very amateurish."

Cortlandt Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, is already making preparations for the international tournament, to be held in some big American city when the cup will be defended.

"While the cups that go to America usually stay there," he said, "they need not deter other nations from trying."

M. Latham is planning the further development of monoplanes. He thinks they are the only practicable machine.

"I can well be proud," said Glenn H. Curtiss, who won the international cup for America at Rheims, as he looked upon the splendid trophy to-day for the first time.

The cup has been on exhibition in the window of a prominent jeweler here and has attracted great attention. It is of rare workmanship and superb design.

SALEM POLICE TO BE INVESTIGATED

SALEM, Aug. 31.—Public criticism of the police department under the administration of Marshall Dane, has led to an aldermanic order for an investigation of the department. Alderman Gifford, in discussing the order, declared that the streets are full of roadies and hoodlums, and that young girls are allowed to go about with unsuitable companions, many of them under the influence of liquor. Indifference on the part of the Marshal was alleged.

LOWELL MAN IS KILLED BY AUTO RACER

LOWELL AUTOMOBILE SPEEDWAY, Aug. 31.—Arthur Otis, twenty-one years old, was killed to-day during the racing preliminary to the big automobile speed carnival which begins here Labor Day. Otis was struck by a racing car and died at 9 a. m. at the General Hospital. Joe Matson, the driver for the Chalmers-Detroit Company, who was running the auto, walked into the police station and gave himself up.

After a brief preliminary hearing in court to-day, Matson was released for two weeks on the personal recognizance of President John O. Helmze of the Lowell Automobile Club. Matson went back to his training quarters.

Two witnesses were heard to-day, both friends of Otis. They testified that Matson could not have prevented the accident, and that he was blameless. No final decision will be given till after the formal inquest and hearing.

Otis received a compound fracture of the skull and various other internal injuries. A number of witnesses declared that the accident was unavoidable.

The accident occurred at the corner of Varnum avenue and Fowler's road and was witnessed by over a hundred people who had gathered at that point on the daring drivers in their early morning training stunt.

Skull Fractured.

When Otis was struck his body was carried a long for a considerable distance by the high powered racing car. Mechanicians and chauffeurs from the Chalmers-Detroit training camp rushed to the avenue and carried the dying man to it until the arrival of the ambulance.

The spot where Otis met with the accident is only a few hundred yards away from his home. He left it on his way to work at the time and was crossing the roadway when he became confused and stepped in front of the onrushing automobile.

Thrown into Air.

Before he had time to get out of the way of the machine the auto, tearing along under speed, struck Otis and threw him in the air and threw him far in front, where it again hit him just as his body touched the ground.

Matson saw this as he crossed the street, and thinking that he could be able to safely pass on Otis's left, veered his machine that way.

Otis became confused, however, and instead of proceeding straight ahead, he also stopped in the centre of the avenue for a few seconds, and then turned and darted back to the sidewalk he had just left a moment before.

Statement by Matson.

Matson is very much unnerved over the accident. To Deputy Superintendent Welch Mr. Matson said:

"With the mechanician I left our temporary garage at the water works station, and when we approached the junction of the three roads I saw the crowd and the flagman. The rest of the course was at the junction separated and got on the side of the road out of danger. This first started to back from the centre of the road, but changed his mind and ran across the road to reach the sidewalk. In doing so he overturned everything and greatly damaged the machine, but we could not stop. We were going at two-thirds speed, the lowest on my machine."

Several cars appeared on the course early this morning to take advantage of the time set aside for them by the association. The air was crisp and the mercury too cold for fast work, although some good scores were made.

The fastest time was made by Herb Lytle, who registered eighty miles on a straight-away. Harry Grant in an Alco was a close second in speed. He made three rapid trips of the course, indicating that he was a dangerous competitor.

BEVERLY TAXES DROP AS TAFT PLAYS GOLF

BEVERLY, Aug. 31.—While President Taft was playing golf to-day over the Myopia course with Secretary of State Knox, the city government of Beverly handed out the good news that the tax rate for the coming year will be $15.40, a reduction of $2 over last year's rate. This is due to the growth of Beverly's Summer population as the result of the President's coming here and his announced intention of returning next year.

Callers during the afternoon to-day included Colonel George H. Dutch, chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, and Charles S. Groves, executive secretary of the committee. The call was informal, though Colonel Dutch acquired what the attitude of Massachusetts is toward the income tax amendment to the national constitution to be voted on at the next election. Chairman Dutch could give no encouragement to the President that Massachusetts favors the income tax.

The President, with the members of his family, will watch the German-American sonder class races on Thursday from the President's yacht, Sylvia, which lies in Beverly Harbor. On September 9 he will formally present the Taft and Draper Cups to the winners of the races on board the Mayflower, in Beverly Harbor. The Mayflower, which is now in Boston Harbor, will come to Beverly the first of next week.

Putnam of Boston has donated twenty color productions of the masterpieces of Jan Van Eyec, Rogers, Vanderweyden and other Flemish artists.

SMOTHERED IN PIT.

FITCHBURG, Aug. 31.—The dead body of Julius Oulnen, a Finlander, employed in the freight house of the Wachusett Station, was discovered in a pit near Wachusett Lake. His death was caused by strangulation. Alec Matson discovered the dead body while out walking through the woods. It was lying face downward and it is supposed Oulnen fell into the hole and was smothered by the sand at the bottom.

MEN WHO LET BRUHM ESCAPE ARE ON TRIAL

Charges of neglect of duty in allowing Clyde G. Bruhm to escape last Tuesday from the city Prison were to-day preferred against Inspector Michael C. Shields and Sergeant John H. Morse. The charges which were made by Superintendent of Police Pierce were heard this afternoon by a trial board consisting of Captains Thomas Evans, John J. Hanley and Irving A. H. Peabody.

The escape of Bruhm from the officers after he had been taken into the office of the city prison and his handcuffs removed preparatory to his being put up on an obligatory charge was one of the most sensational jail delivery ever recorded in this city. The unsuccessful attempt of the gang of cut-throats and New England crooks to capture the young man have been no less sensational.

The last heard of Bruhm he was hiding in Quincy, where he had made his way hostily pursued. From Salem to Kittery Point three days ago, he fled from yacht to yacht in company with Harry V. Wingate.

The police say that he was the leader in a number of big house burglaries that netted the thieves more than $10,000 within recent months.

SWEDENBORGIAN PASTOR IS DEAD

The Rev. Willard Hall Hinkley, one of the most prominent members of the Swedenborgian ministry, and the son of the first preacher of that denomination in the United States, is dead at his home, No. 259 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester. He would have completed his seventy-eighth year if he had lived until to-day, and his family had gathered to observe the anniversary with him. He suffered an attack of heart failure, from which he did not rally. Mr. Hinkley was trained for the law, but after a few years of that profession entered the ministry. His last charge was at Lynn, which he resigned in 1905 to become superintendent of the Swedenborgian home and foreign missions.

EX-SULTAN MAD; RAVING OF INTRIGUES

VIENNA, Aug. 31. Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, is going insane. For three days and nights he has stalked through his home raving and muttering to himself, according to a dispatch received here to-day from Salonica. Brooding over the intrigues and vicissitudes of his life has so preyed on his mind that he has broken under the strain. For three days and nights he has not undressed and in that time has allowed no one near him, fear that he will commit suicide has led to doubling the guards about his apartments. Ever since he was deposed the ex-Sultan has been in fear that he would be put to death. With his wealth taken from him and entirely at the mercy of the Young Turks he dreaded even the misfortune.

It was reported that this might be a plot on the part of Abdul to escape at the moment and flee to some obscure corner of Europe, but his mental distress is apparent, so keen that very few believe this.

Physicians have been ordered to examine him. Ever since he was taken from the Turkish capital Abdul with thirteen of his wives has been confined in a villa at Salonica.

PICKS TEETH WITH MATCH; FIRES HOUSE

Because Mrs. A. H. Sweetman picked her teeth with a parlor match after breakfast to-day the neighborhood around No. 60 Hawthorne street, Dorchester, was treated to changing fire engines, hoarse cries of "Turn on No. 1," "Where's the fire," "Break down that door," and a general hubbub of firemen and policemen and small boys and women neighbors running about to find out what was going on anyway.

You see, Mrs. Sweetman couldn't find a toothpick about the house, so she chose a simple, harmless-looking wooden article—a parlor match—and started to pick.

The red-headed top of the match flew off and landed in the lace curtain, the lace curtain quivered, Mrs. Sweetman ran to the window and yelled "Fire!" Neighbors ran after a policeman, the officer turned in a fire alarm and the firemen answered.

The curtain was found all burned and the fire extinguished. To pick her teeth with a parlor match will cost Mrs. Sweetman $5 as a result of the charges entered.

FIRE VICTIM BLAMES FOES

Declaring that his enemies have threatened to drive him from Pope's Hill, the most fashionable district of Neponset, and that they were responsible for a fire which gutted his residence Saturday night, J. Herbert Turner, a Boston real estate broker, who lives at No. 47 North Munroe terrace, Neponset, says he will call upon the State fire marshal for an investigation.

Discussing the fire, he said:

"The fire is the culmination of the way that certain people on Pope's Hill have treated me since my arrival here two years ago. I can see no motive that there was no way for the fire to start unless by the hands of fiendish.

"I am a well-known fact that certain people on this hill have openly declared they would drive me from this district or ruin me financially.

"All of this trouble started when I took up my residence on this terrace and announced that I would build on the David Tyler estate.

"A number of the owners of property on North and South Munroe terrace objected to my building on the property as they hoped that it would be a park at some future time. It was my plain right to develop the property, but every legal and illegal barrier that could be put in my way was thrown.

"Now my very home has been assailed and I am at the mercy of the fire of incendiary touched off. If it wasn't for Hawthorne street I would be a pauper, as the home would be in ashes. It's a wonder that my wife escaped with her life, for when my wife and myself were asleep.

FORTY LAID OFF AT NAVY YARD TO-DAY

Another cut, affecting a greater number of men, is expected to follow this in a few days. The rush which has kept the yard working overtime for the past week, has ended. The battleship Missouri, which underwent extensive repairs, sailed to-day, and to-morrow the cruisers Birmingham and Des Moines, and the gun-boat Gloucester will follow. Only the gunboat Albion, which is to be overhauled, remains at the yard.

SUSPECT MAY BE SUICIDE

SASHUA, N. H., Aug. 31.—Lowell police officers, who are here looking for clues which might assist in the arrest of Henry Ferron, wanted in Lowell for the murder of Mrs. Flora Rivers, who died Saturday night at St. John's Hospital as the result of blows from an axe, which she declared had been inflicted by Ferron, believe that the man has committed suicide.

Ferron attempted suicide in this city early Friday morning before his visit to the Nashua police station for the purpose of giving himself up. He was seen by Joseph LeBlanc, a small boy, on the Jackson Company's grounds. The boy spoke to him and he gave the lad a bottle of whiskey, which he drew from his pocket. Then, as the lad passed on, he arose and plunged into a deep pool at the foot of the bank, where he had been sitting.

LeBlanc heard the splash and shouted for help. George Charland and Charles Nevins ran up and Nevins plunged into the water, and, being an expert swimmer, pulled Ferron out of the water.

It was later that he visited his mother on Van Buren street, and the police think it was upon her advice that he went to the police station.

DREAMS OF ATTACK LIKE GINGLES CASE

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Memories of a dream which has obsessed her for five years and which has been substantiated by reports of physicians and by a remark she overheard at the table have brought Miss Caroline Benedict, a former Chicago teacher, from New York to sue Stewart Burrell for $30,000 for an alleged attack upon her in her room when she lived in the same apartment building that Burrell occupied. Her attorney, F. J. Carmack, says her declaration will recall the story of the Wellington Hotel bathroom episode in which Ella Gingles was the central figure.

DOCTORS HERE DODGE ARMY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Young doctors from New England do not appear to be so anxious to enter the army as men of the profession from other States. Only two from that section, out of a list of forty-two successful candidates, passed the examination given July 12 for admission to the medical corps. They are Howard Andrew Knox of Massachusetts and Arthur Osman Davis of Maine.

There are at present 104 vacancies in the medical corps of the army, and efficient young physicians who can pass the required mental and physical examinations are in great demand.

The pay is equivalent to about $3,400 a year.

SENATE CANDIDATE GOOD HAS SHOCK

When word got to the supporters of State Senator Doyle last night that Jeremiah J. Good, Alderman Curley's candidate for the Senate, had been stricken with paralysis in New York and brought back to Boston in such a helpless condition that he would have to carry out his campaign on crutches, they promptly intimated that it was only one more of Curley's political tricks, designed to arouse sympathy for Senator Doyle's opponent; the Good undertaking establishment in Roxbury, however, it was said that Mr. Good had quite lost the use of his right leg, and, though retaining control of his right arm, his entire right side from the arm down was affected by the shock. It was stated that he would undergo electrical treatment at the hands of a Back Bay physician. The condition is a consequence of an accident which befell Mr. Good when he was a railroad man.

STEAMER JUST MISSES SCHOONER IN DARK

The economy of the skipper of an unknown fishing schooner came near being fatal for all hands Sunday night, according to stories told by arriving passengers by the Allan liner Laurentian, from Glasgow. The liner was plowing her way along when a big dark object was seen almost directly ahead in her path, with no semblance of a light anywhere about. Just in the nick of time torches were lit on the schooner, and by quick work by the liner's steersman the big steamer passed the vessel with not over fifty feet to spare. The Laurentian's cabin list of 220 was the largest on a steamer from Glasgow this season. Nearly every berth was taken weeks ago for the homeward rush.

BOSTON BOATS IN HOT RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Passengers on the steamer Monmouth of the Atlantic Highlands line and the Yale and Massachusetts, which run to New York from Boston, participated in an exciting race between the three boats to-day. It began near Sandy Hook and did not end until the steamers were well into the upper bay. When all three slackened their speed, it was generally agreed that the race had been a draw.

Persons on board the tugboats and smaller craft in the harbor and upper bay were attracted by the race and steam and gasoline yachts trailed along, making things more exciting by continual whistling.

It was great weather for a race. The Yale made the first dash. The Monmouth came right along behind her. The Massachusetts then began kicking up her heels and followed right along. Word of the race began to spread among those on board the three boats and they swarmed out on to the decks.

Numerous pinochle games on the Monmouth were broken up and the brokers who indulged in them dashed outside and started betting on the race. They had about the most exciting time of their lives trying to figure out which boat would win, and at the end they found they had not figured at all.

SCHWAB LOSES VAST TEXAS IRON FIELDS

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 31.—Following the announcement that Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and associates had closed an option on 36,000 acres of iron ore fields near Hughes Springs, Marion County, and other trusts in Cass and Upsure Counties, it is learned that Texas capital has closed a deal covering options on 20,000 acres of mineral lands in Cherokee, Ruskin and Harrison Counties which Schwab investigated on his recent trip. Texas experts declare there are at least 1,000,000 tons of iron ore within the counties named, and, fearing the ore deposits were about to be gobbled up by outsiders, Texas capital secured them.

CLEARS THE COMPLEXION OVERNIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Ever since its discovery, poslam, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, tetter, barber's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use poslam for these minor skin troubles should immediately secure one of the special 50-cent packages recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent packages and the regular $2 jar may be obtained in Boston at all Riker-Joynes drug stores, Houghton & Dutton's drug dept., and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City.

GET COPIES OF LINCOLN'S OLD RUM LICENSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Steps were taken at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the State Wine, Liquor and Beer Dealers' Association, in session in the Lexington Opera House, to bring about an agreement among all the brewers of the State to close up every dive and notorious saloon in this city and State by refusing to sell beer to any person who does not keep an orderly, decent place.

"We have realized that law and policing have proved ineffective, as have our repeated resolutions for clean saloons," declared P. H. Nolan, president of the Zeltner Brewing Company and editor of Beverages. "We are now prepared to act. A vulgar saloon cannot exist without beer, and we hold the supply of beer. What is more simple? We can force low dealers out of the business.

"Liquor selling is just as honorable as the grocery or dry goods business," declared the Rev. Mr. Wasson, under whose leadership, Riverlead, L. I., defeated prohibition. But you must insist that no one in the trade shall bring discredit and disgrace upon your business. There are hundreds and hundreds of clergymen who believe as I do, but they are afraid of their parishioners."

A surprise was sprung on the 600 delegates at the convention, when souvenirs were handed out in the form of the original liquor license issued to Abraham Lincoln, in Springfield, Ill., in 1833.

7 SHIPWRECKED SAILORS RESCUED

GALVESTON, Aug. 31.—Almost demented by hunger and exposure, Captain G. W. Waldemar and six members of the crew of the American schooner Isaac T. Campbell of Boston were taken from the wreck of the schooner last Friday in the gulf by the British steamship Lugano, Captain Wright, bound from Cuba to Galveston.

Two of the crew of the schooner, which had been wrecked by the hurricane which swept the gulf last week, crazed by their sufferings, broke from their lashings at the rail and were washed overboard and drowned a few hours before the Lugano was sighted 400 miles off the Louisiana coast. They were Herbert G. Banks, cook, and Boats.

GATES ADDS $1,000 TO OLD WEDDING FEE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 31.—As John W. Gates was stepping into his private car here, a white-haired man stepped up, and extended his hand.

"Hello, John!" he said.

"Well, how are you, Mr. Foster," replied Mr. Gates as he vigorously shook the hand. Forty years ago Mr. Foster was minister of the little Methodist Church at St. Charles, Ill. He married Mr. Gates, then living on a farm.

"When you married me I only gave you five-dollar fee, but I'll make up for it now," said Mr. Gates, as he wrote his check for $1,000 and handed it to the astounded minister.

CZAR TO PROTECT YANKEE COUNTESS

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Won over by the affection displayed by the Countess Gizycki for her three-year-old daughter, Felicia, in her patient search for the kidnapped child, the Czar of Russia has officially returned the little girl to her. An imperial order has been received in this city, announcing that the child would be protected while in the possession of the mother, whether in Russia or on foreign soil. Medill McCormick, cousin of the Countess, confirmed the news of the receipt of this almost unprecedented mandate. The child was found several months ago by the mother, but she was in fear that Count Gizycki, from whom she had separated, would steal Felicia again.

REYES, FOE OF DIAZ, AIDS IN FLOOD RELIEF

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 31.—General Reyes, foe of President Diaz and seeker for the presidency of Mexico, has left his mountain retreat near Galeana, where he has been surrounded by government troops for two weeks, and is on his way to Monterey to aid in relief work in the tornado zone.

His presence there may lead to open war or reconciliation between his friends and the followers of the present president. Thus disaster may prevent the rebellion which, it was feared, would shake all Mexico.

To-day the disaster fog cast a blight over the entire nation. The property loss is now estimated at from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000, and 800 bodies have been recovered.

A public subscription list to which President Diaz has contributed $30,000, is being circulated. Reports from Matamoras and Monterey tell of nothing but misery, destruction and death. Famine and pestilence are threatening the homeless.

American Woman Dead.

Search for the bodies is going forward all over the ravaged district. One American woman was found dead, but she has not been identified.

Urgent word came from Monterey today for food and medicine and wagon trains are enroute from the mountain cities which did not suffer from the tornado. It will be impossible to resume train service while the railroad district is so far flooded, and complete service cannot be resumed for six months, officials say.

In Monterey the electric light plant is unable to operate, and the city is in darkness at night. Drinking water is scarce, and much sickness has resulted.

The cathedrals, theatres and school buildings have been thrown open in Monterey for the refugees. Monterey suffered more heavily than was at first supposed.

More Than 16,000 Homeless.

In addition to the industrial centre being nearly wiped out, eighteen blocks of residences were destroyed. Fully one-quarter of the city was destroyed and more than 16,000 persons are homeless.

General Trevino of the Mexican army has taken charge of the relief work and the Reyes followers and loyal troops are working side by side to relieve the suffering. Factional lines have been wiped away, and friends and foes are alike doing all in their power to help the stricken.

The members of the American colony in Mexico city are working with Consul-General Haynes to help the Americans who need assistance.

SLAYERS PUT BODY IN LAKE AFTER KILLING

WESTFIELD, Aug. 31.—Following an autopsy, which revealed that the unidentified man whose body was found in Lake Congamond yesterday, had been killed by a blow from a blunt instrument and then thrown into the lake, seven men, known to have been his companions within a few hours of the time when he was killed, are arraigned in court here to-day. They are held on suspicion of knowing something about the killing. The police meanwhile are investigating reports that there was a brawl the night before the discovery of the body at a camp of the men under arrest. The men, who are clearmakers, gave these names: Benjamin Harrington, Frank McGee, Fred Welch, Joseph Brigman, Thomas Kelley and Harry Longnecker of Springfield and Michael Beaun of Westfield.

None of the men under arrest admitted knowing the stranger, although all said that they saw him the night before his body was found.

According to the story told the police by the men under arrest, Brigman, Longnecker, Behan and the unknown man rowed across the lake from the camp to an ice house and the two latter remained there, the others returning to camp. Brigman and Longnecker assert that while they were rowing back they heard shouts in the neighborhood of the ice house. Behan says that he spent the night in the ice house and that he has no knowledge as to the movements of the unknown man after they landed near the ice house. Behan was found at the ice house when the sheriff went over to the lake. The body was found about twenty feet out in the lake from that point.

GATES OF BIG BARNSTABLE FAIR OPENED

BARNSTABLE, Aug. 31.—The gates of the great Fair Grounds here were thrown open promptly at 7 o'clock this morning and for over an hour a steady stream of humanity poured into the big enclosure where for the next three days everything of interest to fair goers will be on the card.

This is children's day at the fair and the hundreds of little ones who turned out to take in the various shows and exhibits or to take part in the different athletic events which were arranged for them made the grounds look like a real fairyland and there was not one of the happy little visitors, no matter how tired, who did not stay to see the balloon ascension which brought the day's program to an end.

Outside of the athletic events and vaudeville performances the greatest interest was manifested in the baseball game, the first in the series to decide the championship of the Cape. Games will be played each afternoon and the winners of the first two days will meet in the final test on Thursday.

An added attraction to the regular horse racing schedule is the attempt of Frank Fox to lower the track record with Gloria, the little mare that last year clipped the figures which promised to remain intact for a half-mile track.

A new and novel feature which is added this year to the twenty-four-hour butter test, which begins to-day, the test is under the supervision of an expert from the Massachusetts Dairy Bureau. The tests are open to all breeds and their grades and three premiums are offered for the cows producing the most butter.

As in previous years the commissioners on fisheries and game are this year making at the Barnstable fair an exhibit and demonstration of methods used in cultivating edible and bait mollusks, particularly clams, quahogs, oysters and scallops, with a view to showing the people how the land under the water may be farmed as successfully as land above water.

Athletes from Harvard, the B. A. A. and other strong organizations of the State are among the entries in the various sports.

MILK PRICE GOES UP TO NINE CENTS

The price of milk goes up to-morrow morning in Boston and suburbs from 8 cents to 9 cents per quart.

The raise was decided upon this afternoon at a meeting of the Boston Co-operative Milk Protectors' Association in the American House. The raise is general throughout New England. It is necessary, the milk producers and dealers say, on account of the high prices for feed due to the long droughts of the Summer.

The farmers complained to the contractors that milk could not be sold at a profit at present prices, and after many dollars' ation the dealers raised the retail price. In explanation of the increase C. H. Hood of the firm of H. P. Hood & Sons said to-day:

"This season has been a severe one to the farmers. The droughts have put all prices of grain and crops away up, and the farmers have complained to us and we planned to make an advance in the price to the farmer.

"We must thus increase the retail trade, but we will not raise the price any higher than the increase that we give the farmers."

George Whiting of the firm of B. Whiting & Sons said:

"The price of milk will be raised from eight to nine cents a quart at retail to-morrow. The farmers have complained to us and we shall probably raise the price and give the farmers the increase."

NEW ENGLAND IS NIPPED BY AUGUST FROST

Frost in August!

The cold wave which hit New England early Sunday morning was still at work to-day and caused a light frost in northern and central New Hampshire last night. The mercury dropped as low as 35 degrees in that section of New England as far south as Concord, and was felt especially in the region around Lake Winnepesaukee, at Plymouth, Meredith and Woodsville. Much damage to trees and gardens was suffered.

In Boston it was cold during the night, and cool it is to be for two or three days longer, the weather man says. He refuses to be interviewed on why it is cool in New England at this time of the year, but admits that the weather is "unseasonable." New England is the only portion of the United States suffering from premature Winter.

The east wind, which is doing much to help along the shivery weather, is due to increase to-night and to-morrow. A cold, miserable, driving, northeast rain may come to-morrow, the forecaster says.

The mercury to-day in Boston hovered around the 50's in the early morning hours, and grudgingly dragged its way up the tube to 60 at noon, where it refused to move. Yes, as the Forecaster truly says, the weather is unseasonable for the 31st of August, and don't forget, he says, it is going to stay cool for a day or two.

DRAPER TO SEE SENATORS ON INCOME TAX

Anticipating that the income tax amendment will be the most momentous question presented to the Legislature for years, Senators Crane and Lodge and Governor Draper will soon have a conference, at which the matter will be discussed. This conference will be previous to the State convention. Ex-Governor Bates, who has already declared in favor of the amendment is also likely to be included in the conference.

What the attitude of the Republican leaders will be toward the amendment has not been shown. Senator Crane, in an interview to-day, said that he has not learned the sentiments of Senator Lodge or the Governor. As for himself he said he did not wish to state his views at this time. "It is an important question," he said, "and will have to be considered as carefully as any important question."

Ex-Governor Bates is chairman of the Committee on Resolutions of the State convention, and it is said that there will certainly be a plank favoring the amendment before that committee.

The action of the committee will decide in just what way the amendment will come before the convention. The conference of leaders will determine in just what way reference to the tax amendment should be worked.

That the two senators and the Governor will take the position that the amendment should this year be adopted by the Legislature is not generally believed. But that the plank will declare that that amendment ought never to be adopted nobody believes.

The amendment does not die if killed by one Legislature. It can be adopted any time and when two-thirds of the State Legislature have given it their approval it becomes a part of the United States Constitution.

It is predicted, therefore, that no Republican leader will take a position against the income tax, but will agree to a statement favoring the tax in times of emergency, and the adoption of the amendment by the State Legislature at such a time as it may seem that this end is to be reached. This program, sketched yesterday by a prominent machine Republican, is the one said to be under consideration by the big Republican leaders who are anxious to avoid a party split.

MEN THOUGHT LOST WERE AT RACES

Friends of Hollis B. Seates and Charles Harney, who left the Winthrop Yacht Club before Sunday's squall in Mr. Seates's yacht Idella, and of whom nothing had been heard, were greatly relieved when the boat with its occupants returned safely. The men were unaware that their absence had caused any alarm, and during the cruise they were in no danger. They visited Marblehead and spent considerable time there watching the yacht races. Mr. Seates is a shoe buyer, and Mr. Harney is a member of the firm of James Harney & Son.

CITY AUDITOR WILL STAY FOR RAISE

In hope of securing the increase of $500 in his salary, promised some time ago, Harry T. Upham, city auditor of Cambridge, who at present receives $2,500 a year, will retain his position for the present at least. Several months ago Mr. Upham received an offer from the State to connect himself with the bureau of statistics. It was understood at that time that he would receive a corresponding increase in his salary. The matter, however, has continued to brew until within a few days, when parties who had the increase under consideration definitely promised Mr. Upham their support.

JESS BURKETT TAKES LEAD IN N. E. LEAGUE

Big Sammy Murch of the Brockton club, who goes to Detroit next season, and Harold Bangs of Lowell, property of the Boston Americans, were the only leading sluggers in the New England League to increase their batting averages during the week just closed. All the other top-notchers fell by the wayside, especially Shaw of Worcester, who has led for several weeks. The latter dropped 13 points, and gives way to his manager, Jesse Burkett, who now leads the procession for the first time this season. Jess is sticking for .332, just one point ahead of Shaw and Hamilton of Lynn, who are tied for second. Murch comes along fourth, but only four points behind Burkett. Dangig is fifth with .318. He gained 17 points during the week, and went from eighth place. Murch gained five points.

The strenuous pace in the league with four clubs battling for the lead has caused a slump in the hitting, as the best pitchers are being worked overtime in an effort to win games.

The great contest for the lead in runs is now almost a runaway for Henriksen, the clever little outfielder of the Brockton club. He was tied with Messenger of Fall River a week ago, but Messenger dropped out of the game during the week, and Henriksen now leads him by six runs, having scored 82. Messenger is still second. Bradley of Worcester has jumped up in run getting, and is now tied at 74 with Courtney of Haverhill, who has also gone up to a tie again.

Murch has a big lead in hits, with 133, forcing himself way ahead of Bradley. Murch has also taken the total base lead away from Bradley. McLane of Brockton leads in sacrifice hits, and Courtney of Haverhill in stolen bases.

Manny O'Toole, the clever Brockton pitcher, who joins the Red Sox at the close of the New England League season, now tops the pitchers in the league with twenty-three games won and nine lost. He secured a bad start when a game shoulder bothered him, but for several weeks he has been winning consistently. Wood of Fall River is the league leader, as he has pitched only one game and lost it, but if he was sufficiently steady to keep the top way down to fifth place. Cooney of Haverhill, who led the league for weeks, has not won a game for a week and remains in second place. Kenly of Worcester took a bad fall, dropping two games, which sent him from fifth to eleventh place.

Goettel of Brockton won three games during the week and goes from fourth place to the first time. He is now fourth in the list and Finlayson of the same club is eighth, giving Brockton two of the leading ten pitching. Anderson of Worcester has been holding games and gets into the honor list. Girard of Lynn lost both his games and drops out of the leading room. O'Toole won both his games, as did Fullerton of Fall River, who has been among the leaders all season.

JEFF SAYS WHAT BERGER DOES IS O.K.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Sam Berger is vindicated.

From far off Carlsbad, which in the deep-sea dispatch is spelled with a K, big Jim Jeffries sends wor dthat Berger is his duly accredited representative in the making of world's championship matches and that the arrangements recently entered into to the matter of a fight with Johnson is O. K. Here is documentary evidence in the shape of a copy of the cablegram:

"Karlsbad, Aug. 30.

"Sam Berger, San Francisco:

"Agreement satisfactory. Inform newspapers your action authorized by me.

(Signed) "JEFFRIES."

"I knew everything would be explained," said Berger to-night. When that brusque message came from Plymouth saying that Jeffries on his arrival there denied my authority in making the match for him I felt that Jim did not understand the situation. My instructions from him were to stay and arrive at terms with Johnson, but not to sign final articles until Jeff returned. I found on Jeffries' wishes and I wrote him a day or two later and explained the conditions of the provisional articles. His cablegram to-day is proof of what I have done and he is in accordance with his views, and is further proof that if he said anything at all on his arrival at Plymouth it was through a misunderstanding."

Berger says that Jeff will be in New York in about four weeks. Berger will be there to meet him and then no doubt Jeff will have something to say in regard to the division of the purse. Johnson, as all the world knows, has declared that Jeff may make it 75 and 25, 60 and 40 or winner take all.

COLLINS TO RACE M'LEAN AT REVERE

After a lot of talk on both sides McLean and Collins, the bicycle riders, have been matched to race at Revere Beach track next Saturday afternoon. They have agreed on a middle distance contest at twenty miles. In addition to the battle between these men there will be a couple of races for amateur riders.

In issuing a challenge two weeks ago, Collins posted $100 forfeit for a race with McLean, but they could not agree at that time, and the money was withdrawn. McLean now says he will cover any amount that the Collins match may be for, to post.

This race will decide what chance Collins has for the middle-distance championship. McLean has held the title for six years.

On Labor Day afternoon at 2:30 o'clock there will be a one-hour race between Moran, McLean and Collins.

WHITE GETS DECISION.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 31.—Frankie White forced the fighting and delivered many blows to face and body in his eight-round bout with Clarence Forbes of Chicago at the Phoenix Club, but the best he could get was the decision. Forbes was bloody at the end and was puffed as a result of his flabby condition.

EDDIE STANTON IS HERE AFTER BOUTS

Eddie Stanton, the clever Little California boxer, arrived in Boston yesterday and issued a challenge to any of the 118 to 122-pound boys in New England. Stanton arrived from New York, where he has been boxing with great success. During his boxing career Stanton has met and defeated several of the best boys in the country, received by his class. Stanton's recent ten-round contest against Eddie Kelly, the Buffalo pugilist, was heralded as one of the fastest contests on record. Stanton would like to take on Jimmy Walsh at 118 pounds and is not averse to meeting any one from 118 to 122 pounds.

ENGLISH TENNIS PLAYERS ARRIVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Among the passengers on the German liner Kron Prinz, which arrived to-day, were J. S. Parke, C. F. Dixon and W. C. Crowley, members of the British tennis team which will compete against the American cracks in Philadelphia on September 14, in preparation for which will go to Australia to play for the Davis cup.

MIKE TWIN TO GET A BATTLE

Mike Twin Sullivan, about the best looking claimant of the welterweight title, wants to get busy if the other boxers will do likewise.

Mike is willing to take on Willie Lewis at 145-148 pounds if he wants to meet me at the Fairmount A. C. in New York or any club will suit me as far as that goes.

Mike is welterweights look alike to me, Tommy Quill, Gardner or any of the rest of them."

CAREY OUTPOINTS PADDY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Tommy Carey of Philadelphia outpointed Irish Paddy in the ten-round bout at the Bedford A. C., Brooklyn. Carey had the better of the first seven rounds of milling by a big margin. Paddy seemed afraid of Carey until the eighth round, when he warmed to his task. But Carey was with Paddy all the time and his last three rounds were replete with some fast work by both boys.

In the preliminary bouts Kid Curtis had the better of Battling Kitty. The two bits furnished the members plenty of excitement.

JOHNSON GETS K. O. ON BILLY DINKLE

Young Jack Johnson toyed with Billy Dinkle in the main bout before the Apollo A. A. to Salem. The mill, scheduled for twelve rounds, went a little over nine. Dinkle was the aggressor throughout the fight and showed no eagerness at covering up his face, the object point of all Johnson's blows. In the opening of the eighth Johnson rushed Dinkle to the ropes, continually. In the ninth he continued this and added by pushing Dinkle down twice, finally knocking him out.

LONG SWIM FEATURE OF A.O.H. GAMES

The Marathon swim will be a big feature at the A. O. H. field day at Point of Pines on Labor Day. The field will start from Beachmont and will swim along the shore till they reach the hoist at Point of Pines, making a journey of almost four miles. James E. Crowe of the Brookline Swimming Club, a member of the American Olympic team, has already entered.

The hurling game for the championship of New England between the Wolf Tone and Young Ireland teams, and the football contests between the county Clare and county Cork teams, and the game in which the Malden and Revere divisions of the A. O. H. will contend, besides the grand list of track and field stars that have been entered in athletic games, will make this the field day not to be missed among Hibernians followers of sport in New England.

Matt McGrath, Con Walsh, Harry Gissing, Dan Ahearn, Emilio Lunghi and others from New York will meet such local cracks as Lieberum, Donnelly, Burns, Barth, Hackett, Sneehan, McVicar, Ryder, Brawley, Marveau, Cox, Gidney, Riley Clark, the recent winner of the New England all-around championship; Lynch, Farrell and hundreds of others.

Con Walsh, in addition to his attempt to break his own world's record in the fifty-six-pound weight for height, will also give an exhibition of kicking a Gaelic football from placement, the record for which, of seventy-one yards, now stands to his credit.

Entries for the track events will close with H. McGrath, Charlesbank Gym on September 1.

CHEROKEE INDIANS PLAY HERE TO-NIGHT

The Cherokee Indian baseball team will play against the Roger Wolcott A. A. to-night at eight o'clock on the Dorchester High School field. Sunday's game saw Miss Maude Nelson, formerly of the "Bloomer Girls," and Cote will pitch for the Indians, while Gillette and Hagerty will do the battery work for the Rogers. The Indians, with Nelson twirling, defeated the Brockton N. E. league team on Saturday. The Rogers have won fourteen games this season, but this will be their first attempt at night baseball.

BOXER QUITS—LOSES PURSE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Ben Douglas had a comfortably easy time of it beating Joe Meyers at the Olympic Club A. C. After four rounds of milling, Meyers had received enough of Douglas' hooks and jabs, and the referee stopped the bout. Meyers was on the floor most of the time after the first round. According to the club officials Meyers wasn't trying, and it was decided to give his share of the purse to the newsboys' fund.

WELL I FINALLY WON A BET! ONLY $2 BUT IT SHOWS MY LUCK IS CHANGING

BUT YOU MUST ACT AT ONCE ON THE FIRST HUNCH YOU GET—HUH? VOLTAIRE
BUT, SIR MY FEE?
VOLTAIRE IS IN THE SIXTH

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

WELL, I RECKON WE SHOWED these Germans something in the way of racing on the water yesterday. American boats, one, two, three, looks pretty good to me. It may be a bum joke to see it, but I believe the Germans had better pass up the sonders and stick to schooners as more typical.

DID YOU TRAIL ALONG WITH MUTT yesterday and get a little of that Sweep money in the Futurity? It's the first winner the old scout has put over for a long time and he may be right again. The last time he started a shoe-string up he copped the gelt eight days in succession and shoved it into a house and lot. Some people can fall into the river and come out with a pocketfull of fish, but if Mutt should fall into a gold mine he might break his leg, but he's be back with the memory brokers before they went to the post next day. Better watch for him.

SAILOR BURKE, WHO HAS THE reputation of being something of a Kaiser, takes it with Porky Flynn at the Armory A. A. to-night, and the bout will undoubtedly prove a big attraction for the club members. Porky was a prelim boy but a few months ago and to me he looks like the most promising heavyweight Boston has turned out in recent years, but if the Sailor is in a fighting mood the local boy is up against a hard game. Burke will fight his hardest, as he is a down-and-outer for fair if he fails to get a decisive verdict. He should win all right, but watch for a little Sandy Ferguson coloring to his game if Porky is able to land that wallop which he packs about.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
I am greatly interested in Mutt and his friend Jeff, and I would like to know if Jeff is married, and, if so, how many children has he?—YOUNG, Revere.

He's a little bit hazy as to the domestic affairs of little Jeff, and he refuses to discuss them. Judging from his subdued demeanor and the fact that he is always broke, I take it he must have taken a bunch of trouble by the hand and led it to the parson. (I hope my wife don't see this). You know Mutt found Jeff in the giggling ward of a booby hatch, and some take this as additional evidence that he had contracted to pay some woman's board. However, I'll ask Bud Fisher the next time I meet him.

MY OLD FRIEND ALLAN LODEY, OF Fairfield, Me., bobs up again, this time from Boundary Line, N. B. I don't know where that is, but I'll bet it's an all right place or Allan wouldn't be there. Allan is right as a rabbit, and the only thing I knew him to be wrong was when he thinks Jeff will fight Johnson. Take it from me, Allan, he won't. As the English say, Jeff is "spooning." When Jeff and the black man begin to make a noise like getting nearer together, I'll talk over this proposition of yours.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
I am compelled to "ease" you again, this time because you say in your answer to "Reader" on the 20th, "that it would be tough luck for the cow to beat the dinge to it." This plainly says that you have got a web in your attic, as you doubtless mean that the dinge would beat the cow to it.
Now you and Mutt's pal in mind when you sat down to answer "Reader," you surely could not have meant James J.
If you did mean this I will have to bet you once again, and here it is:
If this black man beats Jeffries, I will send you a car load of potatoes, and if he don't all I ask of you is to send me that picture you mentioned with Porky Flynn at the Armory. Odds suit you all right? And where you can get bets up this way, that that dinge won't be there after the 10th rnst, and at almost the same odds?
If it didn't look so foolish I would say that this black four-flush wouldn't last as long as Moreau.
I see Jeff bot, Fitz, Sharkey and Corbett at Coney Island, and Ketchel and Jeannette at Portland, Me., and they don't really belong in the same ring.
This is good, straight, dope.
Very truly,
ALLAN LODEY.
Fort Fairfield, Me.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir: Will you please print the answers to the following questions in your Straight Dope column and oblige?
1. Did Owen Moran ever knock out Abe Attell, and if so, in what round and how many times have they come with Attell? That is prior to advance. I will sign,
Worcester, Mass. SIBBO.

Attell and Moran boxed twice in San Francisco—a draw at twenty-five rounds and another at 23 rounds. Attel has not been knocked out by Moran.

QUINCY, Aug. 27.
Straight Dope, Boston American:
Man at bat hits ball to shortstop, who makes perfect throw to first; first baseman drops ball. Does the shortstop get credit for error?
DURRELL CRAIG.
Water street. Royal Dove Rooter.

Not unless the first baseman recovers the ball and gets the runner out.

BOBBY BOSIO, FORT WARREN.—The pitcher can deliver the ball as long as the batsman remains in the box.

ODDS FAVOR SAILOR BURKE OVER FLYNN

Two fighters were never in finer condition to give a ring tryout in the Queensbury game than Porkey Flynn, the West End Sunsher, and Sailor Burke, the New York wallop merchant.

They are ready for their twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A. to-night. Burke is a physical enthusiast and keeps in fine shape, while Flynn is the lad who was never known to overstep the rules of conditioning.

Besides Porkey is ambitious. He has knocked over the aspirations of all the men he has faced in the ring and is looking for higher things to conquer, with good chances of getting recognition, especially from the Gotham fans if he can take the measure of the Sailor this evening. The beauty of the bout is the species of hitting that each man has the reputation of possessing. They don't resort to fancy sparring to swing them the decision, but believe in getting it the sure way when there can't be any dispute, by the knockout route.

They make a couple of rugged middleweights who can go strongly for any distance, no matter what kind of a bombardment is coming their way.

Max Baker meets Young Dyson of Pawtucket in the opening bout of six rounds. That between Johnny Glover and Young Nixen should be full of pepper, while Mike Malia and Angus McDougall are included in the card, which looks to be about as tasty as a boxing devotee could wish.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Two pitchers have been added to the staff of the New York National League club, according to announcement by John McGraw. The new members of the team are Klawitter of the Shreveport, Louisiana, and George Daily of the Springfield, Ill., "Three-I" League team. The price for the latter is reported to have been $4,000.

The Detroit Tigers have secured an option on "Admiral" Nay, the second baseman of the Madison, Wis., team, for $1,000. Nay has been the sensation of the Wisconsin-Illinois league this season both in hitting and fielding.

Crawford and Cobb are keeping the Detroit club on the top of the American League. Both have passed the .300 mark, Crawford leading with .322 in 96 games and Crawford .317 in 97 contests.

Murray, of the New York Giants, has struck a good gait that he is keeping up. In the last seven games he has averaged two hits a game, getting 15 in that time. He also showed speed on the sacks, stealing six bases.

Outfielder John Cornish, turned over by the New York club to Little Rock after Spring, threatens to quit because he has been ordered to join the San Antonio club of the Texas League.

AD WOLGAST TO BOX BALDWIN

The Armory Club has succeeded in arranging a match between Ad Wolgast, the wonderful Milwaukee boxer, who recently boyed Battling Nelson, and Matty Baldwin of Christchom, who seems to have come back to his old form since he went under the management of Hugh Maclean.

This contest will take place on September 7, and will be the first appearance in the land of Wolgast.

BELLEVUE CLUB'S TOURNEY

The Bellevue Golf Club's open tournament is September 10th and 11th, and not September 4th, as has been reported. The tourney marks the tenth anniversary of the club.

PAPKE PICKS KETCH TO WIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Billy Papke is the one fellow who does not believe Stanley Ketchell is afraid of Sam Langford by holding back from the proposed match.

Papke said to-day: "Cowardice is not part of Ketchell's make-up and mark my word he will fight Sam Langford before Thanksgiving Day, although the bout may not come off before the Fairmont Club. It's a matter of dollars and cents with Stanley and his wise little manager, Willus Britt. Frisco will be the battle ground and Coffroth, the matchmaker. You can bet your good teeth on that.

"The Ketchel-Langford match undoubtedly would pack any club house in the country. But Gibson's Club in New York wouldn't begin to seat the crowd.

Love Will Find Out the Way

AN OLD SONG

OVER the mountains,
And over the waves,
Under the fountains,
And under the graves;
Under floods that are deepest,
Which Neptune obey;
Over rocks that are steepest,
Love will find out the way.

Where there is no place
For the glow-worm to lie,
Where there is no space
For receipt of a fly;
Where the midge dares not venture,
Lest herself fast she lay;
If Love come, he will enter,
And soon find out his way.

You may esteem him
A child for his might;
Or you may deem him
A coward from his flight;
But if she, whom Love doth honor,
Be conceal'd from the day,
Set a thousand guards upon her,
Love will find out the way.

Some think to lose him,
By having him confined;
And some do suppose him,
Poor thing, to be blind;
But if ne'er so close ye wall him,
Do the best that you may,
Blind Love, if so ye call him,
Will find out his way.

You may train the eagle
To stoop to your fist,
Or you may inveigle
The phoenix of the East;
The lioness, ye may move her
To give o'er her prey;
But you'll ne'er stop a lover:
He will find out his way.

Cupid the Auctioneer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DID you know that Cupid is the smallest of all auctioneers? His bargain shop is always open. He does not even take Sundays off, for Sunday is his busiest day in the week.

He thoroughly understands his customers and knows just what wares to bring forward.

When a big, burly, domineering type of man enters, do you suppose he brings forward the same type of woman? Deary me, no!

He brings forth a gentle, mouse of a woman and catching the customer's eye, he calls out, "Going, going—a gentle little woman who will soothe herself fiercely to some husband, who always knows best and must have his own way, just the wife for that tall, handsome gentleman in the rear. Going, going—you can't afford to miss her, sir; ah—gone!"

And when a tall, cold-eyed, ambitious-looking maid appears he scans his list quickly and announces, "Just the thing for you, miss—a prince; a trifle old and shop-worn and very poor, but still a title and a rickety castle that your money can rebuild."

For the college professor he provides what do you think—a blue-stocking maid? Not a bit of it; a little, frivolous, light-hearted person who thinks more of books than of books, and the Herr professor goes off quite satisfied with his butterfly purchase.

All Kinds in His Stock

When a great, strong, athletic-looking fellow saunters into Cupid's auction shop, that wily seller immediately brings forward a slim lily of a girl who looks as though a zephyr would blow her away. "Some great, strong ones like the kind they can protect," he murmurs wisely.

For some hard-faced, mercenary buyers he produces what seem at first sight to be mere bags of money, but there is a man or woman tucked away somewhere in the money bags.

"This kind wants nothing much save money, any kind of man or woman will do," and he sighs as he concludes the splendid bargain, for he is out of his own sphere.

Ah, but when the sweet, wholesome, every-day girl comes in, then you should see him—then is when he is in his element.

"Wanted," he cries, excitedly, "wanted—a good, true, clean heart, the kind that is fit to give to a young girl. Here it is. Just the thing. Going! Going! Oh, my dears, you must take this heart; it is just the one you want. It will be true to you and good to you, and you can honor and love it all the days of your life. Going, going, gone!"

He Is the Ruler of All.

And he sinks back with a sigh of pure delight and closes up shop for the day in order that he may celebrate this good and happy occasion.

He's a busy little auctioneer, is this Cupid boy, and he'll sell your heart right under your nose without asking "by your leave," or "with your leave."

But if he thinks you are cold and mercenary he will pay you back by throwing in a pretty poor sort of wife or husband with your money-bag purchase.

So, like "little Orphan Annie," you'd "better watch out," or you'll be worse off when you leave the auction shop than when you entered it.

THE NEXT BEST THING.

"My heavens, Willie, where did you get that black eye?"

"Johnny Smith hit me with his fist."

"And I hope you remembered what your Sunday school teacher said about heaping coals of fire on the heads of our enemies?"

"Well, I didn't have any coal, so I stuck his head in the ash barrel."

REFORM NEEDED.

First Chauffeur—It's an outrage!

Second Chauffeur—Yes, there ought to be some way to prevent the owner taking the car out without our knowledge.

The Pagans

By Nell Brinkley

One and all—children of the wood and of the city—come to pay homage at the little god's shrine

IN the secret heart of the first forest—its base set in ancient grass and smothered in moss, and its white head reared into the very singing leaves—there is the idolatrous image of the Universal God!

It's just a little white baby, fat, with its legs crossed, and a big, wise head all circled with thin curls, and queer eyes, unearthly eyes that seem always to be turned on mirages and filled with their shimmering, phantom delights; and while he holds his sign of sovereignty in one hand the other is flattened over his heart.

He is very white, and high, and dazzling up in the singing, green leaves where the sun smites his head.

Down at the base in the shade is a round little altar, and a bright flame whips and leaps thereon, its delicate smoke wreathing the image and blowing over his mirage-filled eyes, lapping him in adoration, the fragrance from the fire of passionate hearts.

And since the forest—the first forest—was new, that flame has not ever once gone out!

The whole world has kept it lighted and blowing in the wind down the gray ages. For the hordes that have journeyed to lie at the foot of this shrine! The stones of its altar steps are worn and hollowed with the passionate hands of Pagans.

And strange hands have they been! Brown hands, and white ones, and ebony black hands; strong hands and hairy, and slim, frail, satin ones; the hands that held the gentle pen and knotty ones that laid a sword aside before they worshipped; peasant hands, and long, elegant, cardinal fingers; the hands of bandits and killers, and the holy hands of white-souled girls. All laid humbly on the same kind stone.

All Pagans!

The fluffy, ripple-haired, silk-stockinged, high-heeled, merry-hearted little girl of now and her smooth-cropped-haired lover, and the ungirded, loose-haired, barefooted, bound-in-a-skin-and-a-studded-bristling-belt, big-limbed, husky Pagan woman and her mate, with his mane of tawny hair, and shoes of skin and thongs—ALL Pagans.

For they nurse the bright flame that blows in the wind at the foot of the little white God who rears his Sun-Smitten head in the singing leaves of the first of rest and will till the Day of Doom.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NOT A GOOD START.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl nineteen years old. Last Summer I became acquainted with a young man about one year my senior. Now this young man seems to care a great deal for me. He calls quite often and promises me a very good home if I consent to marry him. He has a very good position, and is capable of giving a wife a very good home. My parents seem to think a great deal of him, but advise me to take my own course in this matter, only giving me their opinion of him.

Now, what I want your kind advice on is this: As for me, I do not love him as yet, for I consider myself far superior, in American education, etc., whereas he is a foreigner. He realizes this fact, and sometimes he can tell more for that, and is quite willing to take any instructions I give him. Now, do you think I ought to continue going with him or not, if I could in time learn to love him? Or do you think it advisable to drop the matter entirely.

YOU will not be happy nor make the man happy as long as you consider yourself superior to him. Real love does not consider itself, but the other person. You had better wait until you can give him the right kind of love, and in the meantime perhaps you can help him to learn the language and study.

BETTER MAKE SURE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man employed in a large life insurance office. I have a good position, next to the head of the department, with an income of $1,800 a year. The clerks in this office are all male, with the exception of the young lady who attends the telephone board, and I have become very much infatuated with her. She is very attractive, and very clever, and apparently likes me very much. There are a number of other young men in the office who also admire her, and although I am not prepared on the moment to marry, yet I feel if I do not speak soon some of the others will. Would you advise me to ask her to marry me, and therefore be sure of a good wife?

H. G.

YOU could live very comfortably on your salary and also save a good deal. I do not see why she should not marry at once if you are genuinely fond of the girl. It is wiser to propose and make sure of her, for if she is attractive other men will also discover that they are interested in her.

Can You Tell This Boy's Age?

"WHAT might your name be, Johnny?" asked the Census Man.

"It might be Johnny, but it ain't," replied the kid.

"Just so," continued the C. M. "Who lives here?"

"I do," replied the kid.

"Will I find your folks out?"

"Perhaps you will; I am willing to give you a chance."

"Is your father living yet?"

"Not yet."

"Now to get down to business. What is your age?"

"That's impertinence, but I'll confide in you that the day I was born my father died and my brother was one-quarter the age of mother and my brother is one-third the age that my father would be were he alive. In twenty-five years more I will be the same age as was my father when he died. Now if you are a good deal smarter than you look you can figure out the desired information."

See if you can help out the Census Man and win a prize puzzle book, one hundred copies of which will be awarded among those who send best answers to Puzzle Editor, in care of this paper.

The Character of a Happy Life

By HENRY WOTTON

HOW happy is he born and taught
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armor is his honest thought:
And simple truth his highest skill;

Whose passions not his master's are;
Whose soul is still prepar'd for death,
Not tied unto the world with care
Of prince's ear, or vulgar breath;

Who hath his life from rumors freed
Whose conscience is his strong retreat;
Whose state can neither flatterers feed,
Nor ruin make oppressors great:

Who envies none whom chance doth raise,
Or vice; who never understood
How deepest wounds are given with praise.
Nor rules of state, but rules of good;

Who to God doth late and early pray
More of his grace than gifts to lend,
And entertains the harmless day
With a well-chosen book or friend!

This man is freed from servile bands
Of hope to rise or fear to fall;
Lord of himself, though not of lands,
And having nothing, yet hath all.

How Her Views Changed

By KENNETT HARRIS

"SHE said that she'd be happy an' content with bread an' cheese an' kisses, only she jest nachally despised the smell o' cheese."

Sol Baker rubbed his hands and chuckled.

"An' so we couldn't make a hitch of it," he concluded.

"An' now when she sees you she can think what she missed," said the storekeeper with a sardonic grin.

"It's all right about that," rejoined Baker. "I was poorer than a piney woods hawg when I did git married, an' if you ast my wife today if she didn't do right well when she took me—well, o' course, I don't know what she might say jest to be contrary, but you'll can take my word for it that she might well have done a heap worse."

"Money hain't ever'thing," observed Eben Baxter.

"That's no lie," said Washington Hancock. "It's a right smart, but it ain't ever'thing. There's heaps o' folks that don't akassly know what money looks like, an' they get along tollable well as long as they kin trade algs for ping terbacker."

"I don't keer nothin' about money as long as my credit's good," Baker remarked. "Money's the root of all evil, anyway, an' I allus did hate to swing a grub-hoe."

"Not but what it's handy," argued Hancock. "There's been heaps o' times I ra'l ruther call to mind that it's sorter slicked over rough places, but, as Josanna Crunshaw said, 'Money hain't happiness.'"

"Who's Joanna Crunshaw?" asked Baxter.

"She's Joanna Billings now," answered Hancock, "Robert Billings, the hardware man's woman over to Craddock. When she was a gal, she was the sweetest thing in seven counties, Joanna was. Pete McGee thought she was, anyway, an' I reckon she thought Pete was the first real good job of a man since the gyarden of Eden. They was mighty thick for a while, an' then, all of a sudden, Ol' Man Crunshaw set his foot down an' said he wasn't a-goin' to have Pete around at no price. 'When you get married, Joanna,' he says, 'it'll be to a man what kin support you.'

Husky, but He Had No Coin

"Pete kin support me,' says Joanna. 'I kin lean the bull o' my weight on him an' he won't no more as staggar. He kin shoulder a two-hundred bag o' salt an' tote it over Bob-Cat Knob, an' Granny says a man 'at kin do that is fitten to be married.'

"'It's husky enough, but that hain't what I was talkin' about,' says her daddy. 'I aim to marry you to a man 'at's got money.'

"'Who?' asts Joanna. 'Pete's got about as much as any of the boys. 'Taint a great deal, but I reckon a gal might go through the woods an' come out with a heap crook-eder stick.'

"'You do the way I tell ye an' I'll see to it that you do well,' says the old man. 'Don't you argify with me.'

Depends on Where the Coin Is

"So Joanna went away whimpering an' she an' Pete couldn't get to see each other more'n seven or eight times in the week. Then one day Pete met Bring Cass Greenway home with him from Craddock. Cass was an old stag about sixty, an' he owned most of the stock in the bank there, b'sides real estate. He took quite a shine to Joanna an' he wasn't long a-tellin' her know it, but she wouldn't have nothin' at all to say to him. Then the old man put his horns down and butted in.

"'You feather-headed fool,' he says to her, 'don't you know he's richer than mud?'

"'I know that Pete's the best lookin' feller around this section,' says Joanna.

"'You'd have the finest house in Craddock,' says the old man.

"'Pete ain't only good lookin', but he's good hearted,' says Joanna.

"'That's all right about his bein' good-hearted, but that wouldn't give you a hired girl an' a horse an' buggy,' says her daddy.

"'Pete's back is as straight as a board, an' his teeth are as even as a row o' peas in a pod an' as white as milk—certain when he's been a-chewin' tarbacker. When Pete smiles, it's like sunshine in the Spring after a hard Winter.'

"'Poppycock!' says the old man. 'If you marry Cass you'll marry close on to thirty thousand dollars.'

"'That wouldn't be marryin' happiness,' Joanna says. 'It's better to have a kind husband than a rich one, an' Pete ain't more than twenty-one come next April. I love Pete, an' I don't love Cass. S'pose he has got money. Eleanora Higginson married old Higginson for his money, an' he don't give her enough to eat.'

"'You kin get all you want to eat,' says her daddy. 'Cass says he'll settle ten thousand dollars on you the day you marry him.'

"'What's that?' says Joanna.

"The old man told it again.

"'Why, you didn't say nothin' about that,' says Joanna. 'That's a heap diff'rent. I reckon I'll have to let pore Pete libble.'

"'An' did she?' asked Eben Baxter, anxiously.

"That's what she done," replied Hancock. "She married Cass an' buried him, an' then she married Billings an' made him deed everything he had over to her. She's livin' in style now."

"I thought she claimed money wasn't happiness."

What Constitutes Disgrace?—By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

JUST what do you consider disgrace? Is it asked, in what does it consist, and what and whose laws must be violated to produce disgrace?

To my thinking disgrace consists in whatever injuries one's own character, lowers the standard of manhood or womanhood, arrests development, or injures another's life.

There is a legal and there is a moral disgrace.

It is a disgraceful act to live in a community where certain laws exist and to defy them.

And it is a disgrace to live according to those laws when to do so means the crucifixion of the highest instincts and ideals.

The woman who elopes with another woman's husband, no matter how absorbing and ideal her love for him may be, disgraces herself, as does the wife who goes away with another man than her husband. There are tribes in Russia where such deeds are not disgraceful, but here they are.

The woman who continues to live in wedlock with a husband she abhors, and to bear his children, disgraces her higher self. Society may smile upon her, yet she is morally tarnished.

Debt Ignobly Disgrace.

The man who lives a life of comfort and luxury at the expense of others, and who rides in his carriage, while he is unable to pay his grocer and milkman, disgraces his family and himself. There's a peculiarly ignoble disgrace in any money negligence or carelessness. It lacks the stronger phases and the powerful elements which sometimes characterize the disgrace resulting from emotions or passions, elevating them almost to martyrdom.

But however progressive and socialistic we are, and however we may condemn existing laws and conventions, we have no right to make our homes in their enormities and then outrage public opinion by defying them.

The Test of Custom

Time and law both set standards of conduct as well as God.

A few hundred years ago a man who married several wives was not disgraced. Even fifty years ago the polygamist thrived in our midst. To-day the polygamist is disgraced because our customs and laws forbid such marriages.

The children of Solomon and David did not blush for the much married condition of their parents, but the children of Smith or Brown, who are proved by modern detectives to be living bigamous lives, feel that disgrace has been brought upon the family. And it has.

The women of many foreign countries do not consider themselves guilty of a disgraceful act when they smoke in public places. The custom is universal, and is approved by the public mind. In any American town a woman who committed such an indiscretion would be disgraced in the eyes of her associates. She has lowered her standard of womanhood.

The woman who becomes a mother without first becoming a wife has disgraced her name, because she has broken the laws of society—laws which were formulated to protect women and children. Yet if her child was love created, she has not been disgraced in God's sight. The wife who bears a child by a husband she hates disgraces her own soul, even though the world may give her its approval.

Unintelligent Examples

The woman who sells her body disgraces herself, whether she passes through the church to the altar of the wedding march, or secretly enters the door of the rendezvous of questionable fame.

The man who commits theft and robbery disgraces himself, whether it is millions in Standard Oil or dimes from a stranger's pocket.

I have known a family to feel "disgraced" because a daughter entered the world of workers and earned her livelihood by honest toil rather than marry a man she despised.

I have known people who were always in debt to tradesmen to feel disgraced because a son became an actor.

Silenced

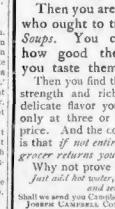
On his homeward journey a tired business man was much annoyed by the conduct of three middle-aged ladies who stood near him. They were evidently just returning from a holiday. All the seats in the train were occupied, but they seemed determined that he should offer one of them his.

He screened himself behind his paper and listened to plainly audible remarks about the decline of gallantry in the present age.

At last he rose.

"Will the eldest of you ladies," he said, "honor me by accepting my place?"

But the advertisements suddenly claimed their attention, and they uttered never a word.



O, sweet is the song of the swallow,
And soup is the loveliest note—
The liquid legato
Of Campbell's Tomato
Gurgling down my throat.

Are you very particular about soup?

Then you are just the one who ought to try Campbell's Soups. You can't believe how good they are until you taste them.

Then you find they have all the strength and richness and fine delicate flavor you would expect only at three or four times the price. And the convincing proof is that if not entirely satisfied the grocer returns your money.

Why not prove this today?

"The Greatest Detective in the World"

Story of the Thrilling Drama, by Francis de Croisset and Maurice Leblanc, "Arsene Lupin," Now Being Presented in New York by Charles Frohman.

By JOSEPH O'BRIEN.

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

CHAPTER I.

A BIT of old tapestry hung against the drawing room wall in the country chateau of the Duke of Charmerac, where formerly had hung a portrait of the young Duke himself. Beneath the tapestry, written in red chalk on the wall, was a name, in itself a record of the humiliation of the greatest detective in France.

For ten years the name has been on the lips of the people of mystery-haunted Paris; it had been scrawled on many another wall, whence priceless pictures had been stolen; it decorated many cabinets of splendid collections of the priceless gems and curios preserved through ages and gathered with toil and cost for a clever thief. The jewel boxes of fair women, the treasure vaults of wealthy men had grown familiar with the red chalk signature. The name was

"ARSENE LUPIN."

Whence he came, whither he went, none could tell. He was the incarnation of mystery, of boldness, of cunning. He might have been a predatory spirit, save that, on occasions, his hands of steel had suddenly reached out from the darkness that obscured his movements, and he upon whom those hands fell could testify to the terrible power that lay in them.

He showed his contempt for the police by invariably sending a polite note to the persons he intended to rob, specifying the hour at which he would call and the articles which he designed to take.

And he had never broken his word. As inevitably as darkness follows light, Arsene Lupin followed his note, took what he wanted and went his way. He seemed to mock at fate and the laws of man.

His Clever Method.

The chateau of the Duke of Charmerac was occupied by a relative, Monsieur Gournay-Martin, a very wealthy Parisian, with a hobby for old masters, rare jewels and curios. His daughter, Germaine, was engaged to the Duke, who had only lately returned from a six years' journey of exploration, during which he had been on an exploration in search of the North Pole and had many other adventures. He was a handsome, well set up young fellow of twenty-eight or thirty, polished, suave, good-humored, and altogether unspoiled and likeable. He was also a most prospective father-in-law, the first trip to the chateau since his return from abroad, on an afternoon in June, and preparations were going forward for the wedding, which was to take place in Paris the next week.

Just three years had elapsed since the chateau had been robbed by Arsene Lupin. On that occasion Monsieur Gournay-Martin had received a polite note from the famous thief, in which he was told that at 1 o'clock on a certain night Arsene Lupin would visit him and appropriate to his own ancient uses. Monsieur Gournay-Martin did what almost any sensible retired business man who loves his treasures would do. He sent the note to the most prized of all his possessions, posted off to Paris with it, placed it in a safe, and called upon Guerchard, the chief of the secret police, who had already spent seven years in a vain attempt to catch Arsene Lupin.

His Capricious Fancy.

It was arranged that Guerchard and his men should be present at the chateau and remain on guard to catch the thief. They came and the family slept in peace. The next morning they awoke to find the men gone, the place robbed and everything which Lupin had indicated was stolen except the tiara. The real Gainsborough was found bound, gagged and almost dead some distance from the chateau. The steel bands had fallen upon him from the darkness. The thief had made up to resemble him, and it was a false Guerchard whose presence lulled the family to slumber.

Why Arsene Lupin had stolen the portrait of the young Duke remained a mystery. It was only a fair picture, of little artistic value, and ordinarily Lupin's taste in art was exceptional. Besides he had not included it in the advance inventory of the articles he intended to appropriate. But it was set down to the capricious fancy of the thief, and little more was thought of it.

It was shortly before the robbery that Sonia Krilchnoff, a sad eyed, beautiful young Russian girl, entered the service of Monsieur Gournay-Martin as a companion to his daughter, Germaine. She was quiet, almost brooding, but there was a slumbering fire in her eyes, and her lithe, slim body had in it the grace of a panther.

Her young mistress was somewhat imperious, and often the slumbering fire leaped into sudden flame and Sonia had to grip herself with all the power of self-repression that her race has learned, to control herself obedience.

She was there when the Duke arrived on his visit, and it seemed that in an instant the whole world was filled with light for her. But it soon grew dark again.

Sonia Surprised.

On this Sunday afternoon she stood in the drawing room where the concealed bit of tapestry hung, reading the marriage announcements which were to be sent out the day after the wedding. She read one aloud to herself, her eyes dry, her face drawn.

"Monsieur Gournay-Martin begs to inform you of the marriage of his daughter, Germaine, to the Duke of Charmerac."

She crushed the notice in her tense hands and threw it from her. Then she hid her face and her shoulders shook, but she made no sound. From the tennis courts outside in the afternoon sunshine came the laughter of Germaine and her girl friends, Marie, Jeanne and Irma, who were to be her bridesmaids.

In a few minutes they came romping in, all of them young, fresh, pretty and blonde, each a striking contrast to the dark Russian.

Germaine walked over to the tapestry, drew it aside, and disclosed beneath it the name written in red chalk.

"Oh that is too bad." Germaine said petulantly. "Have any presents come?"

"No, mademoiselle. But this is Sunday, mademoiselle, and, besides, the presents have doubtless been sent to the house in Paris," Sonia said.

"Good. I'll call up Victoire and ask her," Germaine replied.

"Any presents, Victoire? Good, anything else? What? A pearl necklace. Oh, good. Take good care of it until I see you to-morrow. Goodby."

The New and the Old.

She turned delightedly to the other girls.

"What do you think, girls, a pearl necklace! I have observed," she added reflectively, "that all of papa's real old friends send me something like that, while all of our new rich friends send me butter knives."

"That's always the way" Jeanne commented philosophically.

"Order tea, Sonia," Germaine commanded. "Perhaps the Duke will be in time. Oh, girls, I'm so happy" she said.

"Haven't you been engaged a long, long time?" Marie asked.

"Oh, ages," Germaine replied seriously. "We were engaged before Jacques took this wild exploring notion. Then he went away to the North Pole, or somewhere, and he was gone years and years. It was hard waiting, and I had just about given him up when he came back."

"It was about time," Irma suggested rather spitefully. "You're twenty three years old, you know."

"That isn't old," Germaine protested indignantly. "And, besides, I could have married Jacques if I wanted to."

Sonia almost found it in her sad heart to smile at this little dig at her mistress. She moved over for the girls and herself, and listened absently to their chatter. After sipping their tea, the three girls walked off, leading Sonia and Germaine together. Each was anxious for the return of the Duke, Sonia because she loved him and found a little happiness when he and he was gone years and years. It was

They were interrupted by a servant who announced Monsieur Charolias. Although Germaine had never heard the name before, she told the servant to usher the visitor in. A short, fat, vulgar-looking man, stout fifty years old, entered, moving awkwardly, followed by a stick of a youth.

Both bowing repeatedly, they made almost a circuit of the drawing room, their eyes roving, curiously latent, over the furniture and bric-a-brac before they sat down.

The boy sat near the writing desk, on which were silver ornaments. Toward which his hands seemed to steer nervously. His father seemed to keep furtive watch on the one, the while he talked with a perpetual smile to his eyes. As they plumped themselves down on the edges of their chairs, Germaine stood regarding them with open-eyed astonishment.

"To whom am I indebted for this visit?" she asked.

"I'm Monsieur Charolais, land owner in the neighborhood of the other one explained, smiling and nodding. "This is my son, Hyppolyte," he added, waving his hat toward the youth.

"But, sir, what is your business, what do you want?" Germaine asked, with growing astonishment and anger.

"I want to see Monsieur Gournay-Martin. Is he your father, Miss?"

"Yes, but he is absent and I do not expect him for perhaps an hour. You had better return then."

"Shall I write, too, mademoiselle?" asked Sonia, who had watched the visitors interestedly, in an undertone.

"No," Germaine answered sharply. She turned to the father and son again.

"I am afraid I cannot attend to your business," she said frostingly.

It's Against Orders."

"Don't bother about it, mademoiselle," Charolais replied imperturbably. "You see, the fact is, I heard you had an auto mobile for sale, and I thought perhaps your father and I might strike a bargain."

While he spoke his eyes roved lazily around about the room, and his nervous hands caressed the silver ornaments. Once the father blessed in an aside.

"Drop that. It's against orders."

As if stung by a bee, the youth with drew his hands from one of the articles and turned to his seat, clutching both hands together in his lap.

Charolais never dropped the mask of a smile from his fat face as he continued unctiously but with seemingly unconscious impudence to address Germaine.

"Now perhaps you might tell me, mademoiselle, about the automobile?" he said ingratiatingly, "and we might make the deal."

Impatiently, yet hoping to get rid of him, Germaine replied:

"There is a runabout, which is not for sale, and a touring car which my father uses. Besides that, there is a 100-horsepower car. Perhaps you might purchase that one."

"Thank you, mademoiselle," Charolais said, rising. "I think I'll go and have a look at the 100-horsepower car. Perhaps by that time your father will be back and I'll see him."

Rowing and bowing the older man backed out through the double drawing room doors leading to the veranda, his son bowing and cringing as close beside him that they could manage to each other. Germaine watched them in amazement.

The Duke in Peril.

"What queer people!" she cried to Sonia. "What on earth can have made them believe we want to sell an automobile?"

Her thoughts upon the return of the Duke she soon forgot her visitors, and both she and Sonia went to the door and looked down the long lane and across the fields in the hope of seeing him. Sonia was the first to catch a glimpse of horse and rider, galloping across the country.

"There he comes, mademoiselle," she cried excitedly. "Oh, he is riding straight at the fence, with the racing on this side. Oh, oh" sonia cried.

She crouched and covered her face with her two hands to shut out the Duke's peril. Germaine, too, saw with the Duke, more eager for the sport, watched him delightedly as his horse cleared fence and ravine and he came galloping toward the house.

"He is very safely," she said with a note of relief. "That horse cost papa 7,000 francs."

Sonia arose from her crouching position on the floor as the Duke, looking very handsome in his dark riding costume, entered. The Duke bowed first to Sonia before he kissed Germaine's hand, and there was something pertinacious in the kiss. Germaine busied herself making him a cup of tea, chattering all the while.

The Duke sat on a sofa near the table, looking from one girl to the other. There was a striking difference between them. The Russian girl bore the stamp of the people, despite her great beauty and lithe movements, her beauty and simplicity. The brunette, with golden yellow hair, blue eyes, clear skin, slender body, suggesting in health and imperious spirits, was a daughter of a woman such as wealth makes queen of society. Simple dress of expensive material, beautifully cut and fitted, while Sonia's was dark, plain and ordinarily stitched by a poor hand.

Germaine laughed, chattered and moved unceasingly, while there was in the repose and quiet of the Russian girl a strange, compelling force.

From the one to the other the Duke's big black eyes roved, but his face remained impassive, save for a smile at Germaine's rallies of fun and wit, slipped his tea and joked with her about her anxiety about the presents.

The Thief's Work.

His eyes, looking about the old, familiar room of his ancestors, with their portraits on the wall, fell upon the bit of tapestry that covered the spot where his portrait had once hung.

By the way, I see that all of the old portraits have been taken away" he said. "Dear, why was that taken away?"

"Don't you know?" Germaine asked him, her eyes growing wide at the memory.

"Know! How should I know? I am asking you."

For answer Germaine walked over to the tapestry, drew it aside and disclosed beneath it the name, written in red chalk:

"ARSENE LUPIN."

Drama

Clever Bills Win Applause of Big Crowds at Playhouses

The year of combined talent and painstaking work which John Craig, Mary Young and the other members of the Jolly Craig Stock Company put in at the Castle Square Theatre last season has brought its full reward in a flying start on the season of 1909-10. A capacity audience gave the players a welcome last night to the company and to the first presentation in this city of the Hoagland farce comedy, "Clothes."

While this comedy, which is really more drama than comedy, was a splendid playing vehicle in itself and was ably presented, the audience did not forget for a minute that it was welcoming back to town the players it has learned to like so well. There was applause for everyone, flowers galore and insistent demand for speeches. For Jonny Mary Young, more charming than ever and in the part very fitted to her type, there was such warmth of greeting call she, to use her own words, was never so happy before.

"Mother" is a happy selection for an initial production. It is a modern sarcasm on what children owe to their parents, what women, particularly, poor things, will do for children. Among other revelations it is asserted in this comedy as a fallacy that women dress for men.

"We dress for other women," said Mary Young in her role of Olivia Sherwood, "and the added pleasantry, 'Women are cats.'" And everybody had another laugh.

The plot, in brief, told how Olivia Sherwood, worshipping the false gods of dress and social success, won a man's love to get money for clothes and fashionable follies, then loved the man and would not wed him because she did love at first. But it all came out right and clothes were set at their proper place.

There were thirteen in the cast, but no hoodoo was in evidence in Manager Craig's company which Mr. Craig has seized for the new season includes Theodore Problus, George Hassell, Donald Meek, Wilfred Young, Al. Roberts, Gertrude Bixley, Kate Ryan, Gertrude Shirley, Eleanor Bissell, Mabel Colcord and Florence Shirley.

Big roles and small ones were handled with art. An intensely interesting production was given. There were no hitches or stage waits, so often the accompaniment to an opening night.

Although the play was a satire on clothes, the gowns of the women were on the good old principle that every woman wants to wear pretty things. That was particularly true of Mary Young in the third act, when she wore the ball gown that was to turn the trick on the scene setter. It was a clinging creation in brown and well set off the wearer's charms.

Keith's.

With the Fadettes on their final week, and with several unusually strong numbers in addition, Keith's at Keith's Theatre is one of the best of the season.

Edwin Holt, veteran actor, offers George Ade's satirical comedy, "The Mayor and the Manicure," aided by a competent company. As Mayor Mr. Holt shows his usual nice sense of scenes for side-splitting political blackmailers.

The Four Rimnos give an acrobatic act out of the ordinary, in the guise of jungle animals they cut up various antics. Kid Cabaret, a Western cowboy, gives several poses of the celebrated frontier figures of Frederic Remington.

Orpheum.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" is on its third week at the Orpheum, an unusual run for any comedy drama in a stock company production. The cast of characters headed by Howell Hansel and Edna Bruns, remains the same. The production does full justice to the succession of amusing and dramatic situations of the play. There is a prospect of crowded houses through the week as this week is the final opportunity to see the piece.

Globe.

For its final week of continuous vaudeville the Globe Theatre has a splendid bill. Quinn and Rose, the travesty Romeo and Juliet; Craig, hoop-rollers, and Marks and Long, dancers, are specially featured. Miss Clara Waters, comedienne and pianist, is charming in each capacity. There is an excellent song and illustrator house, but no program. Next Monday Ward and Vokes open the regular combination season at the Globe with a Labor Day matinee of "The Promoters."

Bowdoin Square.

"The Diamond King" is giving a successful of thrills to audiences at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. The romantic story of the play is well told. The members of the stock company are happily distributed through the cast. Miss Sadie Hilton and Frederick van Rensselaer and the leading roles extremely congenial. They receive excellent support. Apart from the regular dramatic offering is a moving picture display which adds much to the entertainment.

Grand Opera House.

That "The Convict's Sweetheart" pleased the audience which filled the Grand Opera House to capacity last night was shown by the long and frequent applause which greeted the drama throughout. The story hinges on a young mining engineer who has been cast into prison for the crime of another. He seeks liberty. His grim determination in achieving that end compels admiration. He wins out, however, only after hairbreath escapes and thrilling rescues.

Crane Wilbur plays the leading role of Frank Templeton admirably. He receives excellent support from Florence Pinckney in the role of Mary Corbin. Others in the cast who play their parts well are Maude Hamilton, Edith Brownlee, Lynda Earle and John Sharkey.

New Palace.

Florence Stanley and company scored a big hit at the New Palace Theatre yesterday afternoon with new rich material. Other features of the week's bill were: Caroline Pallmer, singing comedienne; Bernardino, the handcuff king; Sheridan and Gray, pantomimic artists; Alex Wilson, the ventriloquist, and Mac Reed, the songster. The pictorial music is excellent.

Park.

A bit in advance of the general Labor Day resumption of leading theatrical shows the opening of the Park Theatre Thursday evening in the new drawing-room thief play, "Keegan's Pal," by Paul Armstrong. Emmett Corrigan will be featured in this production, which has been given in Chicago this Summer. The play has a legal point with a great lawyer as the central figure.

Howard Athenaeum.

The "Town Talk" burlesquers at the Howard Athenaeum are becoming the talk of the town on account of the snappy entertainment they are giving. Here is also a review of events from the time of Adam to the present. Included are James Sullivan, Sam Hearn, Jim Mullen, Margaret Lane, Dainty Lady Lavelle, Lew Fisher and other comedians and comediennes and supports. The chorus is comely and capable. Cora Youngblood, the Corson Sextette and others provide a lively olio.

Columbia.

The Yankee Doodle Girls came to the Columbia yesterday for a week of lively amusement. Harry Seman and Harry Hentz have eccentric roles as a tramp and as a cop. Sadie Hentzel is a lively soubrette in feminine side. Her olio specialty goes with a rush. Julie Nevon and the Ghio stone Sisters score with songs and dances. There are pleasing novelties in the wire skits which the Yankee Doodle Girls present. The olio is strong. To-morrow night there will be a wrestling match between Gotch and Pollesky.

Gaiety.

A new note was sounded in burlesque when the "Merry Whirl" came on at the Gaiety stage yesterday afternoon. The first part consists of "The Magic Ring," in which two new characters were introduced, a Clock, played by James C. Morgan, and a Snowman, played by Sherman Wade. Marie Beauregard was a classy soubrette. Ray White, Hebrew impersonator; Walter Pearson and James Doyle were funny and Claire Maynard in songs added much to the piece.

Austin & Stone's.

Austin & Stone's museum, the heroic submarine diver, is giving a deep sea exhibition. Among the other interesting features of the Museum bill, include Madame Bonetti, musical artiste; Famous Williams, the ventriloquist; Mother, the mimic; Conlon's $40,000 painting, "She Will Be Mine," and a new stage show by the Manhattan Maids.

Labor Day Openings.

The dramatic season will get into full swing on Labor Day with the opening of five more important theatres with matinee performances. The openings are: Robert Edeson in "The Noble Spaniard" at the Hollis; Louis James in "The Man He Was Stood Still" at the Tremont, "The Gay Musician" at the Boston, Kapley Holmes in "The Round Up" at the Colonial, and Sam Bernard in "The Girl and the Wizard" at the Majestic.

Lyman Howe's Pictures.

The destruction of Port Arthur, India, was the crowning feature of a new programme at the Lyman H. Howe moving pictures in Tremont Temple yesterday. This scene shows the appalling catastrophe in which 40,000 people died and $12,000,000 worth of property was lost. Other notable scenes included the world-girdling American fleet at Sydney, the races at Manchester, England, and Medan trips. Next Thursday and Friday nights the newsreels of Boston, as guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN, will be absorbed spectators of the audience.

Hub.

Amerno, called America's foremost hypnotist, is the headliner on the Hub Theatre bill. Other features include Howard and Walsh, comedy black-faced; and Ward Wellesley, gymnast and hand-balancer. Arthur Spalding and Marie Camilla have contributed to the corps of singers and have new ballads. The motion pictures are entertaining.

Scenic Temple

The second week's bill at the Scenic Temple at the corner of Berkeley street and Warren avenue contains novelties in drama, music and specialty line. Operatic selections by a prima donna, a snappy monologue, new ballads and up-to-date descriptive views are found on the programme. Incidental music by the Ladies' orchestra adds much to the entertainment.

Theatre Premier.

The Humanascope at the Theatre Premier will present until Thursday the strong drama, "What Drink Did." The musical part of the bill is of high order, including excerpts from opera, poverty songs and ballads with new original dialect. Other features of the week's bill are: Caroline Hall, the Evil Eye of Mex Do, and the comedy, "The Mail Carrier," are on the bill.

Pastime

There is a strong bill at the Pastime Theatre this week. New Songs, illustrated by colored pictures, new motion pictures and exceptional specialty numbers are given.

Lexington Park.

Leonard Grover and company in a farcical play, played head the bill at Lexington Park's open-air theatre. Other feature acts include Burns Sisters, Kildare, the "new" eccentric comedian; Small, Sloan and Sheridan, new illustrated songs and moving pictures.

Paragon Park.

Bigney, the champion high diver; Mlle. Fontaine's trained stallions and other acts are on the programme at Paragon Park this week. There are band concerts every afternoon and evening. The Paragon Quartet sings well. The Hungarian orchestra plays in the Japanese Garden. Saturday night there will be an elaborate display of fireworks.

Norumbega Park.

Volta, the electrical marvel, amazed audiences at the open-air theatre in Norumbega yesterday. He heads a strong bill. Other acts are Capelos, Rockaway and Conway, Marcus and Hehn, Dockson and Lucus and the Komagraph. The zoo, casino, chalet, canoeing and other attractions are at the height of popularity.

Medford Boulevard.

One of the merriest playlets ever seen at the Medford Boulevard Summer Theatre is "After the Shower," which heads the bill there this week. It is put on by Lola Merrill and Frank Otto. Other numbers include the Four Imperials, loop jugglers; the Musical Fredericks, Hammond and Forster, lunch-makers; Alva, the equilibrist, and new moving pictures.

Highland Park.

Manager Hall's bill at Highland Park, Brockton, which lies at the end of a delightful trolley ride from Boston. This evening there will be gorgeous fireworks. Tomorrow afternoon brings the baby show. Thursday afternoon is the young girls' white dress parade. The marvellous diving act of Miss Ross and Claire Maynard in songs added much to the piece.

Steamer Cape Cod.

New York Trolley.

A special car leaves Postoffice square at 2:30 p. m. daily, except Sunday, for Providence and Fall River, connecting with night boats for New York. The scenery on this ride is delightful.

North Shore Route.

Beverly and the North Shore continue to be points of national interest while the Summer White House is at Burgess Point. The steamer Cape Ann of the Gloucester line passes these places in its daily runs to Boston.

Steamer Satellite.

Patrons of the deep sea fishing steamer Satellite are starting out to catch a new August record for big catches. Captain Sorenson takes out the Satellite daily from Commercial wharf.

Joy Line.

Travel is heavy on the combined rail and boat trips of the Joy Line from Boston to New York. Details of the trips may be obtained at the city ticket office, No. 214 Washington street.

Steamer King Philip.

Many of the old boys of the staunch steamer King Philip bring luck to patrons, according to reports from the daily runs. The King Philip goes out from Commercial wharf.

Bass Point Boats.

Trips to Bass Point and Nahant give a breezy ride across the harbor to delightful resorts. The opening of the new lunch room in the Relay House adds much to the general attraction there.

Point of Pines.

Automobile parties, vacation travelers and other pleasure seekers are flocking to the Point of Pines for day or week outings. The new hotel arrangements are excellent, and the cuisine, music and other features find favor.

What's the Use?

By HANK

I PICKED a daisy from the field,
Under the Summer sun,
And with a trembling hand I plucked
Its petals one by one.
"She loves me," or "she loves me not,"
Was what I fain would guess;
The answer came my palms leap,
The daisy told me "Yes."

That night I dreamed I went to her
And offered her my heart,
And told her that if she'd be mine
We nevermore would part.
Ah! in our dream I thought that I
Restowed a soft caress
Upon her most bewitching mouth,
For she had given me "Yes."

Then to a fortune-telling man
I went to hire and said,
"Am I beloved?" He took a pack
Of cards and thus he read.
The signs point to a wedding here,
And gladly I confess,
That when you pop the question she
Will surely answer "Yes."

And so with joy a bubbling o'er
I sought the girl divine,
And told her what the signs had said
And asked her to be mine;
She smiled a most sarcastic smile
And, as she turned to go
She said, "I don't believe in signs,
My answer? It is 'NO!'"

SALES LIVELY IN SUBURBAN REALTY MART

Quite a few suburban properties were reported sold in the realty market to-day, but trading in the city proper is now very dull.

In West Roxbury the large tract of land, containing 1,286,722 square feet and assessed for a total of $21,400, on Harvard street, adjoining the Pierce Farm, between Walk Hill and Morton streets, has been sold by John Fuller to the Fourth National Bank.

In Brighton a tract of land at the corner of Lake street and Commonwealth avenue, containing 67,558 square feet, and taxed on a total valuation of $1,000, is sold by Annie C. Bell to Samuel K. Hamilton et als., comm. by Edward E. Blodgett.

William H. Reed et al. have sold to James P. O'Brien et al. the upper building on the north side of Dorrance street, Providence, and the lower building on the south side of Pleasant street, South Boston. The property is assessed for a total of $3,900, on which $1,500 is on the land.

South Boston Sale.

Another property sold in the same district is that at No. 10 Hudson street, near Dorchester street, which has been purchased by William J. Barry et ux. from Charles P. Daley et ux. The estate comprises a dwelling and 1,872 square feet of land, all taxed for $2,900, of which $700 is on the land.

Childs & Cudlip report the sale of the property at No. 80 Hazel street, between Townsend and Magnus streets, Roxbury, by Catherine Lyons to H. M. Bamberg, grantee. There is a large brick building and 2,587 square feet of land assessed for $7,200, the latter figure being rated for $1,200.

West Roxbury.

In West Roxbury Timothy Connolly et ux. have conveyed to Christina Mahoney a lot of land, containing 4,810 square feet, and assessed for a term a year, at the corner of Partridge and La Grange streets.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS THE ETERNAL CITY

ROME, Aug. 31.—An earthquake was felt here which severely rocked the section of Rome along the banks of the Tiber for three seconds to-day. The people fled from their houses in a panic and pandemonium reigned in the streets for half an hour after the disturbance. The shock was distinctly felt in the other sections of the city, but the force seemed to be greatest in the district abutting on the river. The Pope, who was resting in his bed room, in the Vatican, did not feel the shock.

PREACHER GAVE LIFE TO SAVE FRIEND

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—After a desperate fight in the surf to save his friend, Harry C. Myers of Freeport, Long Island, from drowning in Hempstead Bay, Stanley Roberts, a Baptist clergyman, dropped dead of exhaustion on the beach near Point Look out. Myers, dragged to safety, was unconscious when picked up by spectators, but was shortly revived. Physicians who examined the body of the preacher declared that his over-exertion had killed him.

DESERTED WIFE THINKS OFFICER HAS LOST MIND

"My husband must have lost his mind. During eighteen years of our married life he never gave me an unkind word and I know that he has either met with an accident or is bodily or mentally ill. I want him to come home—I need him—my heart is breaking."

This was the statement made to-day by Mrs. Arthur H. Barker, the wife of the former policeman of Charlestown, who disappeared from his home at No. 4 Cordis street, two weeks ago to-day, after having drawn $1,200 from a bank. Later he sent his resignation and shield to Captain Yeaton. He went to his home, said that he had got a day off because he did not feel well and then started out for a walk.

"I'll be back soon," he told his wife.

"I have not heard a word for him since," continued the wife, "and I cannot understand what has become of him. I have tried to trace him, but have been unable to get a single bit of information. It is all a great mystery."

LOSES HEART TO SONG AND WEDS SINGER

"If I had a thousand lives to live,
I'd live them all for you;
If I had a thousand hearts to give,
I'd give each one to you."
(The song that won George W. Thayer.)

The old song has come true and Alice F. D'Arcy has given her heart and life into the keeping of George Wallace Thayer. Appropriate to the love story which began in such a romantic way, the courtship culminated in a marriage so quietly planned and carried out that it passed off without the slightest comment. It was only to-day that friends of the couple learned that they were married on Saturday.

The bride, or Mrs. Thayer as she is now, is a gifted singer and amateur actress. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. D'Arcy of No. 1161½ Inman street, Cambridge. She has been employed as stenographer in a Boston brokerage office.

Three years ago Miss D'Arcy was guest at an evening gathering in Cambridge. On being asked to sing she happened to choose as her selection the pretty love song by Clement which she greatly admired for its tender sentiment, as expressed in the verses quoted above.

George Wallace Thayer of No. 5 Hastings square, Cambridgeport, and salesman in a Boston dry goods house, was at the gathering. The song and the singer went straight to Mr. Thayer's heart. Without ever meeting a thousand lives or a thousand hearts, Mr. Thayer figured that the singer's one heart and life would content him, and he proceeded to lay siege along that line.

The romance ended just as it ought to. Mr. Thayer persuaded Miss D'Arcy that she could best place her heart and life in his keeping.

Mr. Thayer and Miss D'Arcy, with Miss Carrie Francis Baldwin and George Hendrickson, chums respectively of the couple, slipped over to Brookline in an automobile Saturday. When they returned Mr. Thayer was legal custodian for the life, heart and happiness of Alice F. D'Arcy Thayer. There was a merry supper party of four in Boston that evening in celebration of the occasion.

Then they told the parents of the bride and bridegroom and received simple blessings, Mr. and Mrs. Thayer are living in Cambridge at present, but are preparing to move later to Brookline for their permanent home.

WAKEFIELD POLICE TRIAL GOES OVER

WAKEFIELD, Aug. 31.—Because of the absence from town of Policeman E. F. Poland, who was to have been one of the star witnesses for the defense, the hearing on the charges preferred against Special Officers C. Preston was postponed until Wednesday evening, September 8. The postponement was asked by Attorney George M. Poland, representing Mr. Poland, who will be readily agreed to by the attorneys for George R. Singer, who makes the charges. Patrolman Poland is on his vacation. Preston is charged with making an unlawful arrest and exceeding his authority.

HOWE SHOWS BIG DISASTER IN PICTURES

The third week of the Lyman H. Howe Travel Festival in Tremont Temple carries one of the best programs yet in the entertaining series, with "The Destruction of Hyderabad, India," as the feature subject. This set shows the appalling catastrophe in which 40,000 people perished and $75,000,000 worth of property was lost. The views were obtained with great difficulty. Special permission had to be obtained from the Nizam of Hyderabad, hereditary ruler of that Indian State.

Patriotic interest is felt in the views showing the world-girdling American battleship Fleet at Sydney. Scenes in Mexico are worthy of special mention. The fountain of Versailles and the steeplechase races at Punchestown, Ireland, are other lifelike views.

Next Thursday and Friday nights the latest Boston newsboys, as guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN, will be among the audiences. The "newsies" are keen observers and look forward eagerly to this round-the-world trip with Mr. Howe.

MOON ECLIPSES MARS TO-MORROW EVENING

GENEVA, N. Y., Aug. 31.—An interesting eclipse of Mars by the moon, visible throughout the United States, will occur to-morrow evening, according to a bulletin issued by Professor William R. Brooks of the Charleston Bridge to Boston light. She is Mrs. Elizabeth C. Moore, and is confident she can better Annette Keller-man's record. Miss Kellerman came within one mile of the light. Mrs. Moore accomplished the feat of swimming from off Peddock's Island to Fort Point, astonishing the officers by the ease and grace with which she performed the task. Mrs. Moore uses the Australian trudgeon stroke with great ability and is confident of success in her trip for the light.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 31.—Now that the supremacy of Harriman has been established, his name will have greater speculative weight than ever. As soon as he recovers from his present illness he will be elected a director of the Wabash, and that company will be made the leading one in the Gould system. This fact has given the bash perceived a while and strong market. Wheeling Pacific is strong on very small transactions because the whole Gould system will soon be strong enough to make the repairs long needed.

On his arrival home the other day, E. H. Harriman said: "I had a hard time, in 1907, continuing my associates that Union Pacific would stand a 10 per cent. dividend, and Southern Pacific a 5 per cent. dividend. The times have long since been ripe for hard three years, and I wish that I could say those words now. The public generally has been convinced that those dividends were not speculative affair."

As far as the stock market administrations are concerned, and after all they are, in the long run, a reflex of public sentiment, Mr. Harriman's belief is well founded, for the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific common stocks in the hands of the public are worth 20 points in the stock market to-day more than they were a year ago. To-day some $50,000,000 higher than they were then. The gross earnings justify the dividend declarations of 1908. Southern Pacific has already been advanced to 6 per cent. in the interest, but there is no doubt that Southern Pacific's ability to maintain a 6 per cent. rate on the basis of representative bankers than that of Pacific's ability to maintain its 10 per cent.

That Mr. Harriman's speculative interest in the market is small, can hardly be doubted. He has been selling large of stocks before he sailed for Europe, and it is true that he has likely put no account into a line while abroad or that he has done so since his return.

$ $ $

New York Central has responded with the other Harriman shares. The speculative position is getting quite strong. These persons should be hopeful. When Commodore Vanderbilt bought control of the Lake Shore he gave the order for the stock to John B. Davis, and he increased it to another member of the Stock Exchange, who was told to be sure to get enough Lake Shore to satisfy Mr. Vanderbilt. If Vanderbilt took twelve years to buy Lake Shore, Harriman might be permitted to consume twelve months securing the Lake Shore and Gould system, of which Lake Shore is only a part.

Steel is being bought steadily by Morgan brokers. It was Steel that stopped the market decline on Monday after Morgan or Morgan got orders to take the entire capital stock of the concern to keep it from reaching 71. The increased dividend that was paid on Steel in October is being justified by the way they are working for the whole trust. The trust is now doing better than it was a year ago. The earnings and the output of steel in the United States is to-day 50 per cent. greater than before in the history of the country.

It is a sign of selfish revival that a story of a conversion plan found circulation and support in Wall street. The plan proposed is to be largely reduced by being converted into a 3-per cent. bond, the conversion to be on the basis of 140 for the 4 per stock.

Supposedly, the inside element will furnish the bulk of the preference shares, though it was hinted that outside holdings would be accepted to a certain amount. The rumor is worth more or less without some doubt of its probability. If it be based on fact, it will possess a striking contrast to the exchange made in April, 1903, when $150,000,000 preferred was turned into 5 per cent. bonds at par. The dividends had been raised to the point of $250,000,000 of the stock, $80,000,000 of which they were to deliver themselves, but this was reduced by $100,000,000 for the general and to $20,000,000 for syndicate account. Should the plan talked of yesterday be genuine, it is not unlikely that it will curtail the preferred issue to the amount planned in 1903.

Smelting stock and National Lead are the strong features of the industrial group. Lead is going up on its merits, and Smelting is going higher because in general belief that some very important good news affecting the Smelting Trust will be made in the near future. The Guggenheims are interests in Alaska. There are many persons who believe that Smelters' stock is selling high enough. Some question the net earning power of the Alaska properties, although immense gross revenues are expected from them by all.

Aside from Union Pacific and Steel, it is in the robust condition of business that impressed observers of the market. Nobody seems to want to sell stocks and the trading has fallen far below the million-share mark. The market has not been in such a strong position behind such a small speculative interest in advance it has gone back to the level it occupied nearly two months ago, and is now in every respect in a perfect position. It is cleaned out condition. Steel and Union Pacific have signed their right to sell where they have been selling.

VEGETABLES INDICATE HARD WINTER COMING

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. J., Aug. 31.—In his annual visit to Vermont to announce the weather for the Fall and Winter, Columbus Roarty, for thirty years an undisputed authority, declared it is to be a "mighty cold Winter." He bases this prediction on the long windrows of the corn, sunflowers blossoming early, poor apple crop, and the thick, tough leaves of the cabbage.

ARRESTS NEAR ON N. Y. CURB

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Further improvement in the stock market to-day was led by the steel shares. This was due to the reports of increased business, the trust and independents now operating at the greatest capacity in the history of the country. The trust is doing a little more than 1 per cent. more business than in the boom times of 1906. Steel common sold as high as 78¼ in the first half-hour of trading, which is within ¾ of a point of its highest record price.

Union Pacific and the other Harriman shares also turned very strong. Other stocks that displayed strength were Peoples Gas, Consolidated Gas, Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern and Reading.

On the New York curb market business was quite brisk. Arrests were made because of the numerous calls that have been perpetrated by adding fractions to the prices tended to be brokers and put fictitious transactions on the curb. This practice has almost destroyed the legitimate trading and it is understood that several arrests will be made shortly with the idea of giving legitimate business an opportunity.

American stocks were firm in London under the leadership of Union Pacific, which displayed considerable strength.

SPANISH BULLFIGHTS FULL OF TRAGEDY

MADRID, Aug. 31.—A chapter of thrilling incidents occurred in the Puerto Santa Maria bull ring. A matador, Vazquez, was severely injured. About the same time a woman in the audience was stabbed to death by a jealous rival. Soon after that twenty spectators became engaged in a serious fight, and as the crowds were leaving an elderly woman was run over by a carriage. The fact is commented upon by the newspapers that bull fighters were wounded in five different cities on Sunday.

Miss Diggles became Sister Mary Theodora when, with five other young women, she entered upon a life of religion at St. Mary's. The beautiful, impressive service was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Guertin, assisted by the Rev. Thomas M. O'Leary, chancellor of the diocese.

LOCAL STOCK LIST STRONG

STATE STREET, Aug. 31.—American Telephone and Light & Power were the forenoon features in this market and both showed considerable strength. The former sold up 2 points to 142½, but the buying was largely of New York origin. Lake sold 2 points also, with the same ones who were buyers on the last advance in evidence.

The tone of the whole market was strong, but there was little news for influence prices one way or the other. Sentiment continues optimistic. American Zinc took on activity and rose from 39¾ to 40 and U. S. Smelting was quiet, but firm up to 61¾ and U. S. Smelting preferred also was dealt in, closing at 84, an advance of 1 point over the opening. Arbitrage dealings in Western Telephone stiffened fractionally to 11½ in sympathy with the strength of the parent company.

Curb trading was quiet and prices were generally firm. National Light & Power in consequence furnished the feature with a 1 cent advance to 4 cents.

THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK

By GASTON LEROUX.

M. Inspector Gibaud, who knew the people of Mottéville as well as you know me, had not seen him one after the race course at Longchamps, when, at the race course at Longchamps, had not seen, by, the Comte de Mottéville, he would arrested Ballmeyer. Ah, you may clinic!" ejaculated the lad in a voice ven with sobs, "my father was liberated I was! One will have to be very sharp and very shrewd to capture me!"

he words were uttered so despairingly the fine force of freedom I possessed vanished completely. I threw out hands before me, a gesture which dstable did not seem to see. "Oh, no—no; It isn't necessary to see any thing!" he repeated. "Neither you, Chéri, nor M. Stangerson, nor M. Darzac, nor Frédéric Larsan, nor old Robec, nor Prince Ivar Ivarevitch. But we must know what we are doing, of course, we cannot be Larsan. Only who, that is accomplished that we able to see beyond the faintest those walls?"

There was no freedom in my breathing. I could hear, under the neck of the ern, the regular rising and falling of kept guard.

Well, how about the servants," I asked h an effort. "Mattoni and the others?"

I am absolutely certain of that!" he n was absent from the Fort of Her- chemin-Long when Larsan appeared and M. Darzac at the railway station Boeuf."

Then up, Rodelatille!" I cried. "That don't trouble yourself about that!" he none of their eyes were behind the ka spectacles.

Rodelatille tapped the ground impa ently with his foot and said:

Be quiet, please, Rouletabille. You make more nervous than my mother."

Here was no freedom in my breathing. I could hear, under the neck of the ern, the regular rising and falling of kept guard.

Well, how about the servants," I asked h an effort. "Mattoni and the others?"

Rodelatille tapped the ground impa ently with his foot and said:

Be quiet, please, Rouletabille. You make more nervous than my mother."

A fact, reaching Lyons one minute be- he him, M. and Mme. Darzac saw his ght from the train.

But all the others, if it is necessary prove that they were not at Boeuf at moment, might be Larsan, for all of em might have been at Lyons.

First, M. Darzac was there. Arthur Rance was away from home during the 10 days which preceded the arrival of M. Darzac and of Darzac. He ar- ed at Mentone just in time to receive m. Mme. Edith herself informed me to ght be able to deceive a detective, journalist, a reporter, even the Pa- lbilis—he might even deceive a friend, Rouletabille—even Rouletabille. But he said never deceive a daughter so far that would take him for her father. Now, I ow you as to M. Stangerson. Is he ld deceive you? Is he capable, for ght of the aim for her betrothed. And, friend, Mathilde Stangerson knew the ference between her father's arms the railway station.

"And she knew Larsan, too!" added Rouletabille coldly. "Well, my dear fel- low, your reasons are powerful, but as I do not know at present what form the genius of my father has assumed as a disguise, I prefer rather to hesitate, for the sake of your happiness, [illegible] on M. Robert Darzac which I have never expected to find there, in order to have my argu- ments fasten upon him, in order to have my every possibility a little more solidly. If Robert Darzac were Larsan, Larsan would not have appeared at several occasions to Mathilde Stangerson, for it is the strongest proof of alibi that one can find against Mathilde Stangerson and Robert Darzac."

"Please!" I cried. "Of what use are such vain reasonings when one has only to open his eyes—open them, Rouletabille!"

He opened them.

"Upon whom?" he asked with a trace of bitterness in his voice. "Upon Prince Galitch?"

"Why not? Do you like him, this prince from the Black Lands who sings Lithuanian songs?"

"No," replied Rouletabille. "But he en- tertains Miss Edith."

And he smiled. I pressed his hand. He knew as thoroughly as I did that Edith loved but I knew that he did.

"Prince Galitch is a Nihilist and I am not troubled over him in the least degree," he said, truer calls experienced.

"Are you sure of it? Who told you?"

"Mathilde Stangerson," who knows what Mrs. Edith told Larsan at Lyons. I have spoken an inves- tigation. She is the mother of one of the three men hanged at the prison of the Emperor. . . . Mathilde Stangerson and Mme. Darzac have seen the photograph of the two old women are the other two mothers. There's nothing additional!"

"Ah, you haven't lost any time."

"Mathilde has a fine head," he retorted.

I folded my arms.

"Well, then?" I asked

"No, dear boy, no!" scoffed Rouletabille, almost angrily. "Now, you will see that I noticed that he wears a wig, I suppose. And I assure you that when my father wears a wig, it will fit him."

He spoke so mechanically that I rose to his him, thinking he had no more to say to me. He stopped me.

"Wait a minute . . . We have said nothing of Arthur Rance."

"Oh, he has not changed at all since we were at Glandier," I exclaimed. "That is not the question."

"Always the eyes! Take care of your eyes, Sainclair!"

And he put his hand on my shoulder as I turned away impatiently, and brought my clothing. I felt that his flesh was burning. He left the room and I pre- mained for a moment where I stood, lost in thought. In thought of what? Of the fact that I had been wrong in saying that Arthur Rance had not changed at all. For one thing now he wore a slight mous- tache, something that he had not had in the days of his type; next his hair had grown longer, with a lock falling over the left temple. Again, I had not seen him in two years—and everyone changes in two years—and yet Arthur Rance, who had used to drink heavily, now tasted only water. But, then, there was the fact about Edith! Ah! was I going insane, too? Why do I say that? Why—Ha! the Lady in Black; like—like Rouletabille. I pushed the fact that I was not on guard to go to my room for a little rest; but I slept badly and dreamed all night. Bob, M. Rance and Mme. Edith had disappeared. Then I saw M. Rance and Mme. Edith had disappeared. Then I saw M. Rance and Mme. Edith had themselves into a band of Nihilists who had sworn death to Rouletabille and myself. And when I awakened from this pleasant impression and saw the old Mattoni and the old Bonnet standing be- fore me, menacing walls rising before me, I came near thinking that I was dreaming, and I said to myself half aloud: "It's a fine place to which we have taken refuge!" I put my head out of the window. Mrs. Edith was walking in the Court of Honor, chatting carelessly with Rouletabille and twirling the stem of a rose between her pretty fingers.

I went down immediately. But when I reached the Court I found no one there. I followed Rouletabille, whom I saw go in his room to make his toilet in the Square Tower.

The Tail Does NOT Wag the Dog

It Wags Too Much, However. Minneapolis Journal Is Right

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

How Long Is the Tail to Continue to Wag the Dog?

—From the Minneapolis Journal

There has been a great deal of protest in the West by earnest editors and other citizens against what they call the wagging of the dog by the tail. The "tail" is this Eastern country, and the "dog" is all the rest of the country, stretching 3,000 miles out to the Pacific.

We do not think that the Minneapolis Journal, or the other earnest agencies building up the Western country—THE REAL UNITED STATES—need worry about the tail wagging the dog.

It often happens that young puppies have tails that seem a good deal too big for them, and heads also that seem too big.

Henry George, in one of his books, discussing population, points out that a puppy dog's tail, if it continued always to grow as rapidly as in the first few weeks, would finally weigh about a ton.

The tail of the American dog, which is Wall Street, financially, and Aldrich, of Rhode Island, politically, has been growing pretty rapidly—too rapidly for health, perhaps, and it might be good to have an intelligent, statesmanlike veterinary take a look at the growth.

But in the long run the tail won't wag the dog. It will come to realize that its functions are limited.

We believe and hope that there won't be any East or West, North or South in the United States a few years from now. The interests of the real men—THE WORKERS WITH MUSCLE AND BRAIN all over the country—are identical.

All American workers, honest men, producing something in return for a living, believe the same things, and want the same things.

In the hard scramble for a living, in the concentrated, intense effort necessary to accomplish in a few years that industrial and agricultural marvel called the United States, men have lived apart, Americans have not known each other.

But they are not really apart; they are not really antagonistic.

The big Western man, sun-burned, broad-shouldered, WORKING HARD, is just exactly the same kind of a human being as the thin, dyspeptic, hollow-chested little Harriman of the East, ALSO WORKING HARD.

There are selfish, mean, narrow men on both sides of the mountain. There are big, unselfish, far-seeing men on both sides.

They will all think, and work, and strive together some day—and before long.

This Man Is Easily Surprised

He Should Know That This Government Is Managed by the Exploiters, Not by the People

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—A few days ago I received a package from Porto Rico weighing five pounds, on which the express charge was $1.40. I can send the same package by mail 12,000 miles for less money than the express company charged for conveying it 1,500 miles. It is amazing that the great American nation, which prides itself on its business acumen, permits itself to be gouged to the tune of several million dollars a year by a band of legalized highwaymen like the express companies. Any protest against exorbitant charges is met with insolence and the autocratic demand, "What are you going to do about it?" Yours very truly, G. M. T.

Express companies charge what they please, and can charge what they please, BECAUSE THEIR OWNERS ARE INTIMATE FRIENDS OF THOSE WHOM YOU VOTERS PUT IN OFFICE.

The president of one express company sat in the United States Senate as the representative of the State of New York until he almost dropped to pieces.

Every express company contributes to political bosses at the right time, and with the distinct understanding that the Post Office of the United States, belonging to the people, is not to be used for the people's convenience.

When the inhabitants of America have brains enough to vote for a Parcels Post, they will GET the Parcels Post. Until that time they won't get it.

And perhaps that is just as well.

The people need education in a hard school, and they are getting it.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Who is going to be held responsible for those men who have been slaughtered in the difference of opinion because a workman doesn't see fit to work for the price the employer sees fit to give. Is that any reason why he should be shot down worse than a criminal. In the Homestead slaughter, who even paid the penalty of murder committed then? Now who is going to pay the penalty of murdering those men who are dead and have left families behind?

CeCtainly there must be some one in authority behind the orders as well as some one behind the guns.

The facts stand. The dead are there. By whom and why were they killed?

WILLIAM CHANDLER, New Bedford.

WHO CAN ANSWER?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Can you answer the question why the manufacturer who gets a raise of one cent per yard on every yard woven in his mill—and the mills here in New Bedford are weaving over one mile a minute—can't see how he can possible give a raise of 10 per cent. to the operators who are already working on a cut of 10 per cent. from 1907? I wish to state that I am not a member of any labor organization on earth or any fraternal organization of any kind. Who is President, Aldrich, Cannon or Harriman?

W. C.

New Bedford.
